ROOSEVELT TO SWEEP WEST, SAYS WHEELER; LEADING MAINE DEMOCRATS PLEDGE SUPPORT

GOVERNOR OF OHIO THREATENS TO CALL TROOPS IN STRIKE

TROOPS HELD READY TO MOVE TO SCENE

Outburst of Terrorism Follows Decision To Reopen Two Shafts in Hocking Valley Region.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, March 20.—(AP) Governor White today issued an ultimatum to striking miners in the bituminous Hocking Valley district that violence must cease and that he is ready to back up his ultimatum with the Ohio national guard.

"I am warning the lawless element of this district to refrain from future violations of the law. I am ordering units of the national guard of Ohio to be prepared to move to this district immediately in the event that further contempt of the law is shown, or the continuance of acts which threaten the loss of life and property," the chief executive declared.

Governor White issued his formal statement after a conference with Adjutant General Frank D. Henderson and other high officials, this afternoon, at which reports from the district telling of the shooting of one man and the dynamiting of a railroad trestle were received.

After reciting various recent instances of large groups of men marching upon the mines and intimidating miners, the incidents of last night in which a public highway was picketed and all automobiles stopped, one man shot and a trestle blown up, the governor said:

"This violence, this disgraceful lawlessness can no longer be tolerated. It will be put down by force of arms if necessary and those found guilty will be summarily punished. Laws, rights, and privileges have been dragged in the dust and those responsible must suffer the penalty. I am calling upon all of the law-abiding citizens of the affected districts to avoid any complicity with these outrages and not even to lend their presence to these illegal gatherings."

The governor's statement declared that hundreds of miners in the district are willing to work and want to work, but that they are being prevented from doing so by intimidation of large groups which are not willing to work at the present wage scales.

It is known that the governor takes the view that any man who is offered work now and is willing to work should be protected. It was pointed out that the governor has called the legislature in special session for March 29, to enact relief legislation to provide employment and to directly aid the needy and it would be inconsistent to not furnish protection to those desiring to work but who are kept from working by others.

In his statement the governor absolved neither the miners nor the operators from blame in the present troubles, but asserted each had difficulties. The strike, he continued, is no longer a local matter but affects the welfare of the entire state.

"Those striking have the right to strike and to picket and I shall protect them in the exercise of their rights," the governor declared, "but they do not have the right to assault or shoot at persons desiring to work, or the right to destroy property. Those who wish to work and make a

VET. WIFE MARK 65TH ANNIVERSARY

MARRIED BLISS—Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Cleaton, of Monroe, who this week began the 66th year of their married life. Mr. Cleaton, 90 years old, was a cavalryman in the Confederate Army, and, as "Uncle Billy," has been a widely-known figure in Walton County for years. Last year members of the Pannell Presbyterian Church took them into membership at services held at their home. The couple married in 1867 when Mrs. Cleaton was only 14 years old

BACKBONE OF NATION—Sarah J. and the late John Garner, mother and father of the great Southern statesman. Sitting peacefully by the hearth the parents of Speaker Garner reflect the homely virtues that have given backbone to this great nation. In "the most human document that ever appeared in any Presidential primary" Mrs. Garner's wire to the Howard-Garner headquarters says among other things, "I was born in a log cabin in the Red River country, as was John, whose political career has served to encourage my desire for his success with the fond hope that through the practice of the common principles of honesty and sincerity he may be instrumental in bringing peace and happiness to all America."

In five short weeks Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Cleaton, venerable couple of Monroe, Ga., undergo a strange metamorphosis at the hands of The Sunday American and become "Garner's Parents." The picture at the left, reproduced from The American, of February 14, 1932, was used in connection with the celebration of the 65th wedding anniversary of these well-known Walton county citizens. But in the picture at the right, reproduced from The Sunday American, of March 20, 1932, they are presented as "Garner's Parents—Sarah J. and the Late John Garner." Mr. Cleaton, a 90-year-old Confederate veteran, despite this proxy parentage of a man already furnished with a proxy candidate in Georgia, says he would vote for Roosevelt if he were able to leave his home for the polls.

MONTANA SENATOR PREDICTS VICTORY BY WIDE MARGIN.

Farley Confident of Support of Maine's Eleven Delegates After Long Conference With State's Leaders in Portland.

10-TO-1 MAJORITY SEEN IN GEORGIA

Chairman of Governor's Campaign Reiterates Belief of Nomination on First Ballot.

BY D. HAROLD OLIVER.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—(AP)—Senator Wheeler, of Montana, returned to the capital today with a prediction that the entire west would support Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt for the democratic presidential nomination, and in the election, too, if he wins at Chicago.

One of the leading congressional advocates of the New Yorker, Wheeler returned from a tour in Mr. Roosevelt's behalf that took him into North Dakota, Illinois, Minnesota and Montana. He said he found all indications there pointing toward a Roosevelt victory.

Assuming Roosevelt would be nominated, Wheeler said leaders of both parties in Illinois thought the New Yorker would take that state by a tremendous majority that Minnesota would give him at least 100,000 majority and North Dakota and Montana 25,000 or 30,000.

"As far as the entire west is concerned," he said, "there is no question that if Roosevelt is nominated, he will sweep that country. In my judgment he will come down to the Chicago convention with instructed delegates from every state west of the Mississippi, with the exception of Oklahoma and Texas."

Declaring he had never seen "so much unrest" in the middle and far west, Wheeler said he wanted to warn the "reactionary democrats that the democratic nominee has got to be a progressive liberal, in sympathy with the farmers."

Wheeler's views coincided with a flood of other week-end political developments, which included the filing of a delegate slate pledged to Speaker Garner in California and an indorsement of former Governor Harry F. Byrd for the presidential nomination by the "fighting ninth" congressional district democrats in Virginia.

It will be a three-way clash in the California primary with Smith and Roosevelt slates contesting with that favoring Garner. The Garner slate is headed by William G. McAdoo.

Garner is sticking to the speakership task and declines to discuss the boom for him in the south and west. The Texas committee set up at San Antonio to press his cause for the nomination will meet again tomorrow to discuss future plans.

FARLEY CONVINCED MAINE WILL BACK GOV. ROOSEVELT

PORTLAND, Maine, March 20.—(AP)—A five-hour conference with leading democrats here today sent James A. Farley back to New York tonight confident he may depend on the support of Maine's 11 delegates to the democratic national convention for Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt and unshaken in his conviction that Roosevelt will be nominated on the first ballot.

Farley, chairman of the New York state democratic committee and manager of Roosevelt's campaign for the

DRY FORCES HIT BY U. S. ATTORNEY

New Orleans Prosecutor Criticizes Arrest of Night Club Patrons.

NEW ORLEANS, March 20.—(AP) United States Attorney Edmond E. Talbot sharply criticized prohibition forces here today as the result of the technical arrest of patrons during raids early today upon three popular suburban night clubs.

The agents took the names of patrons who were found drinking liquor at the tables or in possession of flasks and they were told to report Monday morning before United States Commissioner R. H. Carter.

Mr. Talbot, after learning of the raids, of which he said he had not been informed in advance, stated he would not accept charges against the patrons. He said he would ask for a complete report on the raids before deciding whether to accept charges against the clubs.

"Such raids are not in line with the policy of the department of justice in the enforcement of the prohibition law," Mr. Talbot said. "I don't sanction the action of agents going in and raiding guests and I will not prosecute those persons who were only guests and who were arrested for having a glass or a bottle of liquor."

"The way these raids were conducted," he added, "is an old-time, small-town system and is an injustice to the people."

R. E. Tuttle, prohibition administrator for the New Orleans district, could not be reached for a statement. Approximately 25 persons were arrested. Their names were not made public. The clubs are patronized by many socially prominent.

Officials of the prohibition department declined to discuss the raids except to say that "Mr. Tuttle was in charge."

The clubs raided were Suburban Gardens and Club Forest, in Jefferson parish, and Playgrounds Club, in St. Bernard parish.

Witnesses said the agents took positions near the entrance and quietly arrested guests as they produced flasks.

Harris Will Leave Hospital This Week

WASHINGTON, March 20.—(AP)—Physicians attending Senator Harris, of Georgia, who was operated upon recently for a bladder ailment, reported today he probably would leave the hospital the latter part of this week. They expect it to be about three weeks before he is able to resume his seat in the senate.

Subject of Portrait Declares He Is Not Only Not Garner's "Late" Father But Is for Franklin D. Roosevelt for Democratic Nominee for President.

BY RALPH McGILL.

W. C. Cleaton, a grand old man of 90 years, with a magnificent record in the Civil War, sat in his home at Monroe Sunday and wondered at a strange metamorphosis.

The old gentleman was puzzled why he and his wife, both firm supporters of the cause of Franklin D. Roosevelt in the coming presidential primary, should find a photograph of themselves in the Hearst Sunday American picturing them as "Sarah J. and the late John Garner, mother and father of the great southern statesman. Sitting peacefully by the hearth the parents of Speaker Garner reflect the homely virtues that have given backbone to this great nation."

This was making a fine old Georgia couple serve as proxy parents for a man already having a proxy candidate and it was confusing to all who saw it. There seems to be too much proxy pother.

"I'm Very Much Alive.

It was all very puzzling to the veteran Cleaton, who had two horses shot from under him at the battle of Stones river in Murfreesboro, and who once helped hang seven Yankee bushwhackers from one tree in east Tennessee.

"I'm not the late John Garner," he said. "I'm going to live until I die. I've said that now for so long as I can remember, and I'm 90 years old now.

"I was one of the first to go from Georgia, and I captured two Yankees one day and had to surrender the next, when the war ended; so I guess I'm as good a democrat as can be. And I'm for Roosevelt. I'd vote for him if I was able to get out. I think he's the one that's got the best chance to beat Hoover.

"I wish I knew why they used the picture of mother and me. They had it right once."

Out of Monroe Edition.

Several of the veteran's friends recognized the picture and informed The Constitution. The same picture was used by the Sunday American on February 14. It bore the correct lines at that time, explaining that the picture, an excellent photographic study, was that of W. C. Cleaton and wife. And then on March 20 the picture was reprinted as being that of "Sarah J. and the late John Garner."

The photograph apeared in editions Sunday which were sold in Atlanta and which were distributed to other sections. It was removed, however, from the final edition which went to Monroe and to the home delivered circulation in Atlanta.

"I guess they thought he was just an old man and wouldn't notice it," said his daughter, Mrs. Rose Crossley, who lives with and cares for her father and mother.

Sees Roosevelt Victor.

The Confederate veteran, who was pictured as "the late John Garner," is keenly interested in politics. His health and the feebleness of his years will not enable him to get about. He is confined to his chair by the wood fire in the big fireplace.

And the nostalgic odor of the wood smoke brings back to him the memories of a thousand far-flung camp fires in the great travail of the Civil War.

He recalls, too, the great political fights. And he sees in the present campaign a great chance for an embattled democracy to sweep into office with Franklin Roosevelt as its leader.

The veteran sees a hard fight, however. He predicts that Herbert Hoover, despite the animosity of the people in general, will run the democratic candidate a close race. And it is for that reason that the man who, ironically enough, was pictured as John Garner's "late father" believes that Roosevelt is the one man who can do it.

Await Roosevelt Invitation.

"Yes, sir," he said, "I'm for Roosevelt. I don't understand about the picture. That's mother and me, and that's the dog Jake."

Mrs. Cleaton, who is 10 years

Stores Cut Prices To Bone For Greater Atlanta Event

Today is Greater Atlanta Day and merchants expect it to be the greatest sales day of the year.

Startling pre-Easter values and exceedingly low prices are being offered by many of Atlanta's leading stores.

Nearly every business establishment of a retail nature in the city has arranged a special price schedule for the day, which will be in effect for today only. Prices will return to their normal level Tuesday.

Shoppers are asked to utilize the early periods of the day if possible in order not to cause too heavy a strain on clerks who anticipate the busiest day they have had since last November 1, when The Constituion sponsored the first Greater Atlanta Day.

Every storekeeper participating in the event today will have his window display on Greater Atlanta Day, thereby giving shoppers the key to financial savings.

Town Honors Doctor It Once Threatened

POPAYAN, Colombia, March 20. (AP)—Dr. Cesar Uribe, rector of Cauca University, who was threatened by the townspeople when he first installed classes in social hygiene, returned from Bogota today to receive one of the most enthusiastic greetings ever given in this ancient city.

The whole town was decorated in his honor and Dr. Uribe, who formerly was a professor of medicine at Harvard University, was carried to the 400-year-old university here on the shoulders of students and citizens. He announced that his classes would be open to anyone.

FIGHT IS PLANNED ON MARSHAL'S JOB

Abolition of Office To Be Sought in City Council Today by Two Members.

Abolition of the office of city marshal and merger of its duties with that of the tax assessors will be sought in council today as another economy and efficiency move.

Councilman John A. White, of the fourth ward, and Alderman G. Everett Millican, of the tenth, proponents of the plan to effect the consolidation as of January 1, 1933, explained that elimination of the office would save more than $10,000 a year in salaries and make for better service to the Atlanta public.

The measure has strong councilmanic backing, and there is every possibility that it will be approved, although proponents probably will ask that it be sent to the ordinance committee for study instead of attempting to push it through council this afternoon.

Among other important matters to face council will be a resolution from the tax committee condemning alleged "racketeering" in tax reductions; report of J. Henson Tatum, city clerk and registrar, on the outcome of the futile efforts to recall Mayor James L. Key, and a recommendation by the council bridge committee that the Whitehall street viaduct be reconstructed at once.

Councilman William M. Rogers, chairman of the bridge committee, will urge acceptance of the bid of Flagler Construction Company, low bidder, to replace a structure regarded as dangerous by engineers who have warned that unless it is rebuilt a serious accident may occur at any time.

ONE-SIDED BATTLE SEEN WEDNESDAY

BY R. E. POWELL.

Confidence that Georgia's 28 convention votes are going to be cast this year for the next president of the United States, coupled with the fact that Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, himself a Georgian, is now certain to be the democratic nominee, is expected to end the most one-sided political battle ever staged in Georgia when the primary polls close Wednesday.

Estimates of the size of the vote vary, but the power Governor Roosevelt has shown in Alaska, Washington, Minnesota, New Hampshire and North Dakota—where his campaigns for one territory and four state delegations have resulted in singularly overwhelming victories—will bring out a record preferential primary vote in this state and give him a smashing majority in every county in the state.

Week-end developments indicated that practically every one of the 159 counties will hold a primary under the rules adopted by the democratic state executive committee at Macon early in February. In the event any county does not hold a primary, its unit vote is assured because the candidate winning the popular vote in the other counties may select the delegates to the state convention from

William G. McAdoo Flies to Atlanta

William Gibbs McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury, flew to the Atlanta municipal airport early Sunday night from Houston for an overnight stop on his way to Washington, D. C., where he plans to spend several days at his eastern offices. Mr. McAdoo spent the night at the Atlanta Biltmore.

Mr. McAdoo said his visit to Atlanta had no political significance, the stop being made here to permit his pilot, Harry Ashe, to spend a short visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Ashe, 2851 Memorial drive, southeast.

The former secretary declined to be interviewed. He will continue his journey to Washington this morning.

Georgia Bi-Centennial Plans Laid at Meeting in Savannah

Miss Moina Michael and Willis Sutton Give Elaborate Suggestions.

SAVANNAH, Ga., March 20.—(AP) Various suggestions in connection with the celebration of the Georgia bicentennial were offered at a meeting here last night. A comprehensive program was submitted by Miss Moina Michael, of Athens, who suggested that the celebration begin early next year and culminate next fall in two football games that would attract the attention of the entire nation: Georgia vs. the Army at Athns and Georgia vs. the Navy at Atlanta. Miss Michael also suggested that either the British ambassador or the Prince of Wales be invited to unveil the memorial in the state capitol authorized by the legislature as the state's tribute to Oglethorpe. She related plans for the placing of another plaque in memory of Oglethorpe in Westminster Abbey, stating that a delegation of Georgians, headed by Governor Russell, be sent to London for the ceremony.

Dr. Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of the Atlanta schools and past president of the National Education Association, who was elected vice president of the state bicentennial commission, suggested that not only should Georgia's great history be depicted by pageantry, but that the needs of the state, especially the educational needs, be stressed during the celebration. He suggested that among the organizations to be asked to lend their assistance to the celebration, the following should be included: The newspapers, public and private schools and colleges, patriotic organizations, such as the D. A. R., U. D. C., Colonial Dames, American Legion and others; civic clubs, chambers of commerce, parent-teachers' associations, Georgia Education Association, farm demonstration agents, county, state and sectional fairs, Georgia Manufacturers' Association, churches and Sunday schools, Georgia Bar Association.

He suggested that various contests, such as oratorical, music, dramatic, art, be held, with the history of Georgia and the state's needs as the subject.

Dr. Linwood Taft, of Drexel Institute, an authority on pageantry, made a short talk, stressing that the co-operation of all Georgians is needed for the successful staging of the gigantic affair.

Mrs. Julian C. Lane, of Statesboro, presented information regarding various phases of the pageants of the past, and will attend the meeting of the pageant committee in Savannah next Tuesday night.

Preceding the meeting Colonel Pleasant A. Stovall, who was elected president of the commission, entertained the members at dinner at the Hotel DeSoto.

Senator E. N. Williams, of Monroe, who was named temporary chairman of the commission by Governor Russell and who introduced the bill in the senate that created the commission, presided at the meeting until the election of the permanent officers. He declined a post in the permanent group, stating that the honor of having been temporary chairman was sufficient for him.

Georgia Art Exhibit Going to Washington

WASHINGTON, Ga., March 20. An exhibition of the works of members of the Association of Georgia Artists will be displayed for 10 days in Washington, beginning March 29, according to announcement of Mrs. H. T. Harriss, president of the Woman's Club, which is sponsoring the showing.

The collection to be exhibited here is that which was recently shown at the High Museum in Atlanta; is now on display at War Memorial hall in Athens, and which in April will be the third annual showing of the state association at Savannah.

Upwards of 100 outstanding works are included in the collection. Oils, water colors, pencil sketches, pastels, miniatures and sculptures.

NEGRO AUTOIST KILLED IN MYSTERY ATTACK

VALDOSTA, Ga., March 20.—Will Preston, colored, was killed and his brother Mack Preston, badly injured, when an automobile in which they were riding was fired on by occupants of another car last night near Melrose, south of this city.

According to the sheriff's office the car in which the Prestons and Will Bell, another negro, were riding, had crossed the Florida line when a car containing several white men came up behind and opened fire. The car was riddled with buckshot and when two of the tires were shot out the auto turned over.

The two negroes who escaped with their lives declare they have no idea who the men were who fired at the car, as not a word was spoken before the shooting, and the attacking car continued on as the shots were fired broadside.

JOHN NEVILLE BIRCH SUCCUMBS AT MACON

MACON, Ga., March 20.—(AP)—John Neville Birch Sr., active in business here for more than half a century, died in a local hospital Sunday morning.

Funeral services will be held at noon Monday at his home with Dr. Walter Anthony, pastor of the Mulberry Street Methodist church, officiating.

Mr. Birch was born in Columbus, Ga., on October 14, 1859, but moved to Macon at the age of five and lived here the rest of his life. He was a son of John Neville Birch and Maggie Sewell Snyder Birch. In April, 1884, he was married to Miss Leila Caldwell, of this city, who died two years ago.

He is survived by two daughters, Miss Leila Birch of Macon, Mrs. Ben T. Bowdre of Memphis, Tenn.; one son, J. N. Birch Jr., Macon; two grandsons, Ben T. Bowdre and John Neville Birch Bowdre, and several nieces and nephews.

THOMAS ASHE HALL PASSES AT ALBANY

ALBANY, Ga., March 20.—(AP)—Thomas Ashe Hall, 73, member of a noted Georgia family, died at his home here Sunday morning. Mr. Hall was a native of Macon county, where he was born February 28, 1959, the youngest son of the seven children of Judge and Mrs. Samuel Hall. His father moved to Atlanta following his appointment to the bench of the supreme court of Georgia, and later Judge Hall maintained a law office in Macon, but his family resided in Houston county, where he also had an office.

"Captain Tom" Hall, as he was known to hundreds of fellow workers, from boyhood had a love for railroads, and early in life secured employment with the old East Tennessee railroad, but later went to California, where the Ashe family, to whom he was related through his mother, resided. He remained there less than a year before he came back to Georgia to become a conductor on the Central of Georgia railroad between Macon and Montgomery, serving that road for a period of 45 years until he retired in 1928.

It is said that he established a record equaled by few conductors in all railroad history by serving almost a half century without a single mark against his record. He moved to Albany in 1918.

Mr. Hall was married to Miss Lida Drane, of Savannah, member of a well-known North Carolina family, who survives him. He is also survived by one brother, R. P. Hall, of Albany, former clerk of the superior court, who lived with him. Other brothers and sisters were Miss Harriet Hall, who died in Albany in 1917; Ezekiel Hall, who died here in 1890; Mrs. Susual Grove Hall Tift, who died here in 1917; Joe Hill Hall, noted Georgia lawyer and legislator, who died in Macon in 1922, and R. A. Hall, who died in Albany in 1907.

Funeral services will be held at the family residence here Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock, conducted by Rev. S. S. Cobey, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church, with interment at Oakview cemetery.

MURDER AND SUICIDE VERDICT AT LITHONIA

LITHONIA, Ga., March 20.—(AP)—A coroner's jury today found Charlie Weed, 43, committed suicide after he had shot Mrs. Estelle Capes, 34, to death in the churchyard of the Union Grove Baptist church, near here, yesterday.

The bodies were found by Mrs. Capes' daughter, Louise, 11, after she discovered a note to her half-brother which said "Get married and take care of L. and H. I'm gone." Louise has a brother, Harry, 7.

Mrs. Capes, estranged from her husband, and Weed, whose wife died last year, had been shot through their heads. A pistol lay near by with two empty shells, and officers said they believed the two had died in a suicide pact. Weed is survived by two sons, Charles, 11, and Melvin, 7.

Funeral services for the man and woman were held today and both were buried in the churchyard where they died.

New Biography of Martha Berry, Georgia Educator, Highly Lauded

MOUNT BERRY, Ga., March 20. Publication of the book, "Martha Berry, Friend of the Southern Highlander," by Tracy Byers, is announced by G. P. Putnam's Sons, of New York, for the latter part of April. This, the first book about the work of Martha Berry, founder and directer of the Berry schools, is welcomed in the press of the country in advance notices as a charming biography of a great woman.

In the literary reviews, The Wasp, of San Francisco, a resume of the book and the work done by Miss Berry reads in part: "It was Martha Berry, daughter of a Georgia planter, who first seriously espoused the long-neglected cause of the mountain people of the south, and so eloquently and effectively did she plead it both by word and action that President Roosevelt called her the greatest woman in America. Today modern schools and a great college stand on the land inherited by Miss Berry from her father, ample testimony to the realization of her vision.

"The Berry schools at Mount Berry, Georgia, are justly famous the world over. . . . The biography of Martha Berry by Tracy Byers is the story of a woman's devotion to an ideal; of the many sacrifices and compensations which accompanied its realization. Simply and vividly told, it is a narrative of tremendous human interest, the life story of a truly great woman."

The Hartford (Conn.) Courant says of the book: "A biography of a remarkable woman, who quietly, determinedly and unobtrusively has carried out a noble work for her fellow men, a genuinely great humanitarian."

LIBERTY COUNTY SITE OF BIG LIQUOR HAUL

Officers Destroy $50,000 Worth of Choice Liquors and Champagne.

SAVANNAH, Ga., March 20.—(AP) Sheriff M. R. Clark, of Liberty county, in company with four customs inspectors from Savannah, made a haul of 2,500 cases of liquor near Mellon bluff at Carr's neck in Liberty county Saturday morning and until late last night were busy destroying the whisky and champagne valued at an estimate of $50,000 wholesale.

No arrests were made and the lone guardian of the huge supply of imported liquor made his escape.

In the consignment, which is supposed to have been landed several days ago and which came from some rum runner, were Bourbon whiskies, rye, gin, and a superior grade of champagne. All the liquor was packed in sacks.

Sheriff Clark, recently re-elected, figured in a sensational case against liquor runners some time ago which resulted in charges being filed against him, an indictment returned by the federal grand jury, and his conviction on the charges of conspiracy. His case is now on appeal. Since that time he has run for re-election and Liberty county voters vindicated him.

BANKHEAD DECISION IS SEEN THIS WEEK

WASHINGTON, March 20.—(AP)—Decisions involving contests against two southern democratic senators—Bankhead of Alabama, and Bailey of North Carolina—are in prospect this week by the senate elections committee.

Chairman Shortridge today called the committee to meet Tuesday. The amended petition of complaint filed yesterday by George M. Pritchard, republican, charging fraud in the 1930 North Carolina contest will be considered then.

Senate democratic leaders so far have been standing firmly by both Bailey and Bankhead and if the party lines up solidly prospects of unseating either are doubtful.

INTEREST TURNED TO CITY PRIMARY

Green Expected To Call Meeting To Set Date for Balloting Soon.

City political observers have turned their attention to the municipal primary in which nine department heads and 13 councilmen must be nominated with a prospect that the races will be held either the earlier part of June or in September.

There also was a prospect that Mayor James L. Key, following his decisive victory Tuesday, against a labor-prohibition coalition seeking his recall, will take a determined stand to select officials in sympathy with a general economy and efficiency program.

Council's action today on a joint proposal of Alderman G. Everett Millican and Councilman John A. White to consolidate the office of city marshal with tax assessors may reduce the number of posts to 21. The measure will have strong backing and in the event of its passage, there will be no nomination for that position.

It is expected that Dr. Samuel Green, chairman of the city democratic committee will call his committee together within the next few weeks to set the date for the primary.

Department heads whose terms expire this year, and all of whom are expected to seek renomination in the primary are:

City Comptroller B. Graham West; City Attorney James L. Mayson, Superintendent of Electrical Affairs Pat Hendricks, Tax Collector R. A. McMurray, Chief of Construction Clarke Donaldson, Treasurer Henry B. Kennedy, Building Inspector Charles J. Bowen.

Council members, whose terms expire, and a majority of whom are slated to seek to succeed themselves, are:

First ward, Philip Breitenbucher; second ward, J. W. Weaver; third ward, Ed L. Almand; fourth ward, John A. White; fifth ward, E. P. Dodd; sixth ward, Claude L. Barnwell; seventh ward, W. M. Rogers; eighth ward, James L. Wells; ninth ward, Raleigh Drennon; tenth ward, Nelson T. Spratt; eleventh ward, George B. Lyle; twelfth ward, Tom Smith; thirteenth ward, Ellis B. Barrett.

There was a prospect of several heated races as rumors of several contests pervaded the city hall.

Slaying Confessed.

TEXARKANA, Texas, March 20. (AP)—John G. Harris, of Bono, Ark., today confessed, officers said, to the slaying of Ed Royal, tourist, whose mutilated body was found near here last Sunday. Harris said he killed Royal in a fit of rage while they were parked in Royal's car by beating him over the head with an automobile pump and jack.

What Makes the Yo-Yo Yo? It Is the Torque, of Course

At last it is known what makes the yo-yo yo!

For some time folks have known what yo-yo is, where yo-yo is and when it is, but it's been a problem to find out why it is. The last question is now answered.

Of course, it has been explained before that yo-yo is a disc-like spool, perhaps two and a half inches in diameter, attached to a string about a yard long.

To operate it the string is wound around the yo-yo's axis, the yo-yo is dropped from the hand and promptly runs up the string again.

Practice Brings Skill.

If you're really good you can throw the thing out and back it will come. Or you can toss it over your head, make it loop-the-loop, compel it to stay at the end of the string until you are willing for it to return, and do plenty of other tricks.

Everybody's doing it, of course, but just why the yo-yo does its stuff has been something of a problem. Now we know. It's a little torque that does it.

You may examine the yo-yo ever so closely and never see the torque, but it's there just the same, and it's the thing that does the trick.

Reveals Secret.

We have it on no less authority than the statement of Amby Subria himself, the yo-yo champion of the world, who can do everything with the Philippine fun bug but make it talk.

"It's very simple," says Amby. "It's all in the torque. That's why the yo-yo yos."

Be that as it may, the fact is that Atlanta is becoming yo-yo crazier every day.

Hunger Striker Leaves Washington Hospital

Wolter agreed to enter the hospital yesterday on provision that he be not compelled to eat and thus end the fast through which he hopes to attract world attention to the inability of an educated man to obtain suitable employment today.

Hospital authorities declined to comment on Wolter's departure, nor would they say whether he had been asked to leave after declining to take food. They said, however, he did not eat while there.

Miniature Fleet of 15 Vessels Ordered Home by Navy Officials.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—(AP)—Their mission of protecting American lives at Shanghai ended, 15 United States war vessels today were ordered by the navy department to point their prows homeward.

The miniature fleet—consisting of six destroyers, six submarines, the aircraft tender Jason, the submarine tender Beaver, and the transport Chaumont—will leave behind the major part of the Asiatic fleet which rushed across the Pacific in February when the Chino-Japanese hostilities threatened to engulf the International Settlement.

Still on guard will be Admiral Montgomery M. Taylor, commander-in-chief of the Asiatic fleet, aboard his modern cruiser Houston, and more than two-score smaller vessels. In addition, the 31st infantry regiment will be left behind as its transport sails.

Officials said there was no indication when the infantry regiment, the first regular army troops sent to China since the Boxer rebellion, would be withdrawn.

Springtime Arrives on Schedule With Fanfare of Warm Sunshine

BY ROY ROBERT.

In the spring a young man's fancy
Lightly turns to this and that
While to girls this necromancy
Brings one yearning—a new hat!

Yet, this steady glow and burning
For a new hat is evolved
From the maidens' eager yearning:
Leap Year problems must be solved!

Young men's fancy began turning to this and that Sunday afternoon at 1:54 o'clock and by nightfall those same fancies had made a complete change, making this Leap Year a thing of joy for anxious maidens who have viewed the late arrival of winter with much trepidation.

But all's well that ends well—and spring arrived with a fanfare of sunshine. The early buds of three weeks ago had succumbed to the mad thrust of winter last week, but underneath the sod and within the boughs of trees there was promise of green and beautiful things to come.

Atlantans greeted this old, old happening with much elan and motor riding. In old clothing and old automobiles they hied forth to smell spring in the balmy air and to gaze upon the remnants of winter left in the form of barren trees and brown grass. The new garments were saved for Easter Sunday, next.

Golf courses were doing a rushing business, both private clubs and municipal. Rusty clubs which stood in closet corners during the winter were called upon for yeoman service to the dubber who still hopes to break that "90" one of these days.

Church attendance reflected the stirring in the minds of people. Morning crowds were large and a lustiness in voices in the choirs indicated the happiness of all for the gorgeous season.

City parks presented unalterable arguments that spring was present. Here and there a member of the unemployed army could be seen sunning himself on bench and grass, while prodigious yawns attested to that lazy feeling that arrives with spring.

Yes, there was no doubt that spring had arrived. The only thing missing was an Italian gentleman with a hand organ and a monkey, to prove the calendar. Who knows—he may be standing behind the same corner that hides prosperity from view.

What about Monday?

More of the same, according to the weather man, who said that spring is here, albeit there might be a hint of rain and a gust of wind to add variety to Monday, March 21, which should have been the first day of spring, but wasn't. Temperatures today will be about the same as those of Sunday, perhaps a bit higher.

2 WOMEN INCLUDED AMONG 15 BANDITS TO DIE IN RUSSIA

MOSCOW, March 20.—(UP)—Fifteen bandits, including two women, all members of a "specialized" criminal organization operating in central Asia, were sentenced to death at Tashkent, on March 12, advices received today disclosed.

The women were Domma Terentyeva and Anna Martinova, who were described as "killers." Several other women were among the 35 members of the bandit gang who were defendants at the sensational trial before the Uzbek supreme court. Those who escaped the death sentence were given long prison terms.

Witnesses at the trial said the band had terrorized central Asia for years through the medium of a "crime trust" which concentrated on robbery of freight trains. Many murders and armed robberies and some efforts at counterfeiting were described to the court.

It was declared that the members of the band "specialized" in certain criminal activities. Some were expert killers, others were "businessmen" and others organized the sale of stolen goods through private markets. The robberies were so extensive that they seriously affected the food, textile and other supplies to central Asia.

ATLANTA, GA., MARCH 21, 1932.

GEORGIA'S ADOPTED SON.

In expressing regret at his inability to attend the dinner in honor of Governor Dick Russell given by the Atlanta Junior Chamber of Commerce, Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, wrote that his regret was all the more keen because, "as you know, he is my governor, too."

That is exactly the way the people of Georgia feel about it—and it is in that spirit that they should go to the polls in sufficient number next Wednesday so that the rest of the country may have no doubt about the fact that, having adopted Governor Roosevelt as a favorite son, they want him as their president.

There is, of course, no doubt about the result of the election. Not a single county will go for the amazing "proxy" candidate who will not receive one out of each dozen votes cast.

This "proxy" trickery is an affront to the intelligence of the voters of Georgia.

The larger the vote in favor of Roosevelt in Georgia, the harder it will be for those who precipitated the Georgia contest, and have sent glowing accounts of the "strength" of the "stop Roosevelt" movement here, to explain these false reports.

These reports have been circulated in every state in which there is thought to be a chance to defeat Roosevelt.

A smashing victory in Georgia will be another nail in the coffin of the "anything to stop Roosevelt" movement.

So the voters of Georgia should turn out Wednesday in record-breaking numbers for the double purpose of rendering aid where it will be of most service, and to prevent the use of Georgia as a trick mule for a few intriguing machine politicians at the national convention.

GARDENS FOR UNEMPLOYED.

State and community relief committees are being urged by the president's organization for unemployment relief to provide gardens for the unemployed, citing the boon which the hundreds of thousands of such gardens were to both unemployed and part-time workers during the fall and winter.

So that these committees may have the benefit of information on the garden experiences of last year and previous years, the organization has published in booklet form 29 of the many reports sent in by communities and industries which helped the unemployed grow some of their own food. This data can be secured by writing direct to the organization in Washington.

It is reported that hundreds of communities assisted the unemployed during 1931 to obtain land and seeds and were given expert instruction where necessary on the raising of food crops. The essentials to the success of the program are trained supervision, suitable land, selection of good seed for a proper variety of products and assistance during the growing season.

Largely as a result of governmental and other aid spring and summer gardens in 112 of the 254 counties of Texas totaled 259,354 as compared with 179,052 in 1930, while the fall gardens increased from 27,121 to 148,918.

Communities and industries developing home garden programs for the unemployed and low-income groups will again have the help of county agricultural agents, according to the report of the president's organization for unemployment relief. Many of the subsistence-food-production projects will be followed by programs for the canning of surplus foodstuffs, including demonstrations of preserving methods, as well as community canning kitchens.

Every family sent back to the farm, where they can be assured of safety and a moderate degree of comfort, is a step towards the reduction of our surplus of urban population—a condition largely responsible for the present depression.

MISUSING THE RADIO.

Reports broadcast Sunday morning by radio that the kidnaped child of Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh had been returned to its parents caused a repetition of the nationwide excitement, and subsequent disappointment, of a week ago, when from the same source it was announced that the babe had been safe at home for several days.

Both reports were without foundation, but were merely rumors which had been picked up and sent as definite facts from one end of the country to the other.

On both occasions, millions of Americans who had been eagerly following the efforts of the young couple to bring about the return of their child, were made happy, only to be disillusioned later when trained newsgatherers ascertained that there was no foundation for the reports.

America's most sensational kidnaping is the first real big story radio has ever attempted to "cover," and, naturally enough—though with regrettable results—it has fallen down miserably. And it has served to prove incontrovertibly that not only can radio not supplant the newspaper as a collector and disseminator of news, but that as it stands today, it can not even serve as a reliable adjunct to the press.

When the biggest human interest story of this generation occurred, the press was ready. In selecting the men and women to "cover" the story, editors of the newspapers and the press services choose highly trained reporters and writers—men and women whose years of service equipped them instantly to give a true account of what was happening, to millions whose hearts choked in their throats. These men and women, circumscribed by ethics—with fortunately only a few exceptions—knew dependable news sources at the scene, and thoughtfully separated wild rumor from plausible official reports before giving it to the world of readers. It was a tedious assignment at best; yet they had behind them the training and experience which can not be picked up overnight. In this measure, the public was protected against hysteria and sensationalism.

Not so with the radio. Overnight, indeed, the broadcasting companies set up their microphones not far from the stricken home, and men who heretofore had come no closer to news than a football game or a yacht race, stood before their instruments and, with all the breathless excitement of a babbling sports announcer or bleacherite during a world's series, sent rumor after rumor throughout the length and breadth of the land. For fifteen and thirty-minute periods, these untrained, inexperienced announcers, filled in periods when actually there was no new developments with harrowing "details" based on flimsy hearsay. One moment hearts leaped with hope; the next they were dashed to the depth of anguished despair—the simple expedient resorted to by announcers who had a certain number of minutes that must be filled before the microphone, even though it happened to be the time when more than 400 of the country's best news gatherers reported "nothing going on."

In journalism the source of news must be dependable before it is printed. Even then feeling is omitted, and statements are qualified beyond a suspicion of mere personal opinion. But in America's greatest news drama radio employed all the theatrics of the old melodrama. All that was lacking was the sad, sweet strains of "Hearts and Flowers" when the announcers, several miles away, painted the heartache and grief in the innermost part of the home from which the babe was stolen.

Radio has great opportunities. It is, in some ways, an asset to our American every-day life. Now accustomed to it, we could ill do without it. But the fact remains that an announcer, untrained in journalism, has no more business giving the public his own version of a story of such magnitude than a 12-year-old boy has at the throttle of the Crescent Limited.

The average radio "announcer" is becoming a public nuisance, anyway. Generally speaking, he takes himself entirely too seriously and centers the spotlight on himself rather than turning it on some interesting feature that the radio audience would like to hear between what kind of a plaster is good for corns, and what cure-all is good for the liver, and much other radio rot from which, fortunately, a weary audience can get immediate release by turning the dial to some other station.

Somehow we never feel like forming new acquaintances when a salesman tells us he wants to sell us something "to introduce it."

The most serious setback the temperance movement has had in months is the recent announcement by a statistician that 65 per cent of divorces are caused by drink.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

Position of France.

Professor Harry Elmer Barnes writes that from the political and military standpoint all looks rosy for the French dream of indefinite control of Europe. Her allies are loyal—that is to say, tied hand and foot to her by military and financial alliances.

When, however, we turn to the economic set-up the situation is far different. From the standpoint of gold reserves and credit power, France is as supreme as she is in the military and in the diplomatic field. But there her primacy ceases. She can place loans, but she cannot provide markets for her dependent and vassal states.

Now, France's allies are drawn irresistibly towards Germany for markets and exchange. Therefore the French goal is to gain control of German industry. France seems to be willing to go any length to accomplish this aim. She tried to wreck German finances, only to be temporarily restrained through American intervention.

But it is now almost certain that Laval came over here and succeeded in preventing Mr. Hoover from aiding Germany further with moratoriums or extensions of credit. She came near wrecking Austria and drove the Bank of England into a corner. She has reduced her ally Rumania, who showed inclinations to sidle up to Germany, to bankruptcy.

The great question is now can France wreck Europe financially and capture German industry, fast approaching bankruptcy, before France herself is wrecked?

Peter the Great and Lenin.

Mr. Bruce Bliven discovered something in Leningrad which no one, to my knowledge, ever observed before, namely, that Lenin and Peter the Great started their careers just across the street from each other.

When Lenin came to Russia in 1917, he first stayed in the house of a former mistress of the czar, and made his speeches from a corner in her garden. Any good left-fielder, says Mr. Bliven, could throw a baseball from that point to a little wooden hut which was the earliest dwelling place of Peter when he founded the city.

This trivial fact seems not to be without significance, for it seems that the two men were more alike than most Russians would care to admit. Lenin would have thoroughly understood old Peter, with his vision of a new Russia taking her place among the great nations of the world, and Peter, if he were alive today, would be one of the mightiest rooters Russia could have—for the five-year plan.

JULIAN R. LINDSEY, brigadier general, United States army, awarded the Distinguished Service Medal for especially meritorious and distinguished service.

The brilliant and successful attack of the 164th infantry brigade, 82d division, commanded by him, in the Argonne forests, showed a spirit of aggressiveness and leadership of a high order. The tactical advantage attained in this action, whereby St. Juvin and Grande Pre were laid open to attack, was largely due to his ability and energy.

CHILEAN PRESIDENT DENIES DIFFICULTIES

SANTIAGO, Chile, March 20.—(AP) President Juan Esteban Montero denied as "ridiculous" today published reports that his cabinet had resigned.

The story was printed last night in a newspaper opposed to the government. The political situation has been delicate on account of squabbles withing the government party, but Premier Mora telegraphed to all provincial capitals that there was no ministerial crisis.

TRAFFIC WAR PARLEY SET IN LONDON TODAY

LONDON, March 20.—(UP)—A conference will be held at the ministry of transport tomorrow in an effort to end the so-called "cut throat" traffic war between Great Britain's railroads and bus lines.

Representatives of the Big Four railroads and auto bus freight services will attend the meeting and, if they fail to reach an agreement, the government is expected to intervene with legislation to equalize competition. The railroads claim that the war is driving them to ruin.

The Caged Wolf May Behave Well, But the Virtue Is in the Iron Bars

By Robert Quillen

The visitor was being shown through Heaven, and the guide was holding forth in the manner peculiar to guides. "On your left," said he, "is the finest residence section we have. Here you will find our best people—those made good by example. They began early and learned to love goodness for its own sake. There isn't a cull in the lot.

"Next you see the home of the seconds—those made good by environment. They became good because it was the expedient thing to do. First-class people, of course, but their virtue was a product of the other fellow's conscience.

"Now we come to the third-raters. These were whipped by hard circumstances and their spirits were broken. Suffering made them humble and in their humility they turned to virtue to find balm for their hurts. Good-hearted folk, but a little soft in the backbone.

"This barren region is reserved for those of the elect who were made virtuous by old age. In their youth they raised the devil and laughed scornfully when virture was mentioned, but when they had grown tired of sinning and had lost their hair; teeth and pep, they became solemnly pious and devoted their lives to scolding the young. Rather an ungracious lot of poor sports, but saved by the skin of their teeth."

"It is all so interesting," gushed the visitor. "And now that you have shown me those saved by example, by environment, by affliction and by old age, will you please show we that vast and beautiful portion of Paradise inhabited by those who were saved by man-made statutes?"

The guide shook a gloomy head.

"Whatever the cause of virtue," he said, "it is a germ of life in the heart, not a chain affixed to one's legs. We set aside a quarter of an acre for those saved by statute, but nobody ever has applied for space."

HOLLYWOOD IN PERSON

BY MOLLIE MERRICK.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., March 20.—A windstorm played havoc in movieland, wrecking studio lot sets, uprooting trees, lifting shingles from roofs and altogether upsetting the calculations of residents.

Greatest damage done on street set locations on local lots, where light timberwork was ripped from its moorings and necessitated the summoning of a repair crew to insure resumption of work with as little delay as possible.

Two notable pictures now in the making, "Back Streets," made from Fanny Hurst's novel of that name, and "As You Desire Me," have several outdoor scenes. The high winds will delay progress on the former.

Old-timers' faces are seen daily on the sets where extra and bit-work are giving the once famous a chance to earn their daily bread.

Paramount seems to have more than its quota of the former favorites. I discovered both Florence Turner and Florence Lawrence working in "Sinners in the Sun." Carole Lombard and Chester Morris, two players unheard or in the days when Florence Lawrence was the toast of the screen, were the leads.

Ella Hall, a tiny blonde, who was once leading lady to some of the most prominent stars, is playing an occasional role. Helene Chadwick is another whose winsome smile and cheery brown eyes made her a high-salaried attraction; she now works for a small salary whenever work is available.

Virginia Pearson, whose slumbrous sultry charm was the cause of much enthusiasm in bygone years, takes character roles in this year of depression when she is fortunate enough to secure them. Alice Lake, Barbara Tennant, Vola Vale, Claire McDowell—all once great screen favorites—are in the talkies, mostly without having talk to do.

Do you remember Wilfred Lucas? He was once a D. W. Griffith star and a leading player in "The Birth of a Nation," and now slips in whenever there is a pay slip available. And Ted Doner, Bill Franey, Ford West and Francis Ford are all looking for a "break" once again.

Pat Somerset was a London stage star a few years ago. He has yet to secure a screen lead, although he haunts the booking offices.

Grace Cunard often plays a "bit," although she is very wealthy. She saved her money in the days when she was a star, but, although the march of the cinema has passed her by, she loves to get before the camera, and will accept almost anything to do.

Four former directors play "bits" and small parts. Frank Beal, Edward J. Le Saint, Phillips Smalley and Jerome Storm are before the cameras where they used to be the big men behind the grinding box.

It's a strange and topsy-turvy village, this Hollywood, and this year seems to have sealed its strangeness more finally than before. Broadway is memory lane compared to the brief remembrance of these producers who have tremendous obligations to meet and tremendous finances to juggle in order to convince a group of hard-headed businessmen that they are getting the highest interest on the investment.

In such an atmosphere there is little time for sentiment or auld lang syne.

And from Florida Jean Henderson wires me that E. Terrence MacGovern, actor, sportsman and former husband of Mildred Harris (once married to Charles Chaplin), was married at St. Augustine to Catherine Waas, a Jacksonville society girl, at 3 o'clock of the morning—thereby surprising many friends.

Health Talks

MILK IS FINE FOR CHILDREN IF THEY LIKE IT.

We know your opinion of pasteurized milk, writes a Connecticut correspondent, but we have two boys aged 8 and 4 . . .

Our Connecticut correspondent pays 15 cents a quart for milk from a tuberculin tested herd, and it doesn't purport to be very rich milk. She gets two quarts of this daily for the two children. Then lately she has been buying one quart of pasteurized milk for 13 cents, and this milk, she thinks, is richer in cream or fat. She wants to know whether the pasteurized milk would not be just as good for the children as is the milk from tuberculin tested cows. She reminds us that each child receives besides his quart of milk daily two teaspoonfuls of cod liver oil and two tablespoonfuls of tomato juice.

The poor kids.

I think pasteurized milk would be all right for any child over 3 years of age.

It is unnecessary to feed cod liver oil to a child over a year of age, unless it is especially prescribed by the physician in the treatment of some disease.

In my opinion banana is a better source of vitamins than tomato juice for infant or older child. I believe it is good practice to begin feeding every baby a small daily ration of well ripened banana at the age of 4 months, and to increase the daily ration from half a spoonful at first to half a banana daily by the time the baby is 8 or 9 months old, and a whole banana or more after the baby is a year old. Besides providing the essential vitamins, banana is nature's own regulator of intestinal digestion and peevish, sickly, costive infants thrive on it.

Pasteurizing means merely heating the milk hot enough to kill disease germs in it. Heating to a temperature of 145 degrees Fahrenheit is sufficient to kill tubercle bacilli, diphtheria bacilli, typhoid bacilli, streptococci of scarlet fever or septic sore throat, the germs of undulant fever and all other known disease germs which may be carried in ardinary milk. Usually the 145 degree temperature must be maintained 20 to 30 minutes, then the milk allowed to cool again.

If the pasteurizing process were controlled by the public health authorities, not by commercial or private interests, the compulsory pasteurization of all milk except, of course, certified milk, would be an excellent health measure.

Certified milk is the only grade of raw milk that is safe and desirable for the feeding of infants. Certified milk costs much more than ordinary milk and is worth the price, if it is available at all.

But for children over 3 years of age I believe ordinary pasteurized milk is perfectly wholesome food, and I doubt if I should be willing to pay more than the market price of pasteurized milk for any other grade except certified if I could have that.

I think a pint of milk is plenty for any kid to take each day, if his diet otherwise is not unreasonably restricted.

CASE AGAINST INDIAN TO REACH JURY TODAY

GLOBE, Ariz., March 20.—(AP)—A stolid Apache cow puncher's denial that he slew a Columbia University co-ed, and the assertion of a department of justice agent that the Indian had confessed the crime, will be pondered tomorrow by a federal court jury.

Testimony was completed yesterday in the trial of Mac (Golney) Seymour, the red man, accused of fatally stabbing Henrietta Schmerler, 25-year-old anthropology student. Her body was found last July on the White River reservation where she was living alone while studying the Indian in his natural habitat.

Neither the government nor the defense used all the witnesses that had been summoned. United States Attorney John C. Gung'l did not bring to the witness chair any witnesses in rebuttal after Seymour, making a categorical denial of the crime for the first time, asserted from the stand that "I did not kill her."

The Apache admitted during his direct testimony that he had fought with the anthropology student in a ravine on the night of last July 18, as he was escorting her to a dance. He declared, however, that he did not intend to kill her.

Under raking cross-examination by Gung'l, Seymour aroused from his stoical impassivity to assert he knew nothing whatever about her death. He declared she was searching for a knife to stab him when he got on his horse and "made horse go fast away from there."

Previously the Indian told of his alleged intimacies with the girl, carried out after she gave him whisky and encouraged his advances.

Judge Allbert Sames' instructions to the jurors, and final argument by counsel, only remains to be completed tomorrow before the jury retires.

ONE SHOT, TRESTLE BLASTED AS STRIKERS PROTEST MOVE

ATHENS, Ohio, March 20.—(AP)—One mine official was shot and wounded seriously, a railroad trestle dynamited, and the automobiles of four other officials stoned, as striking miners in the Hocking Valley bitumonius coal fields voiced their protest over the announcement that two mines would reopen tomorrow.

With the announcement Saturday that the No. 6 mine of the Sunday Creek Coal Company, at Millfield, and the Lick Run mine, operated by the Hocking & Athens Coal Company, would reopen Monday, approximately 150 miners last night dynamited a trestle on a spur track leading into the No. 6 mine.

Andrew Chute, assistant foreman of the No. 6 mine, was shot in the back of the head when miners opened fire on an automobile in which Chute and Walter Duncan, pay roll clerk, were riding.

Chute was taken to an Athens hospital, where he is in a serious condition.

All telephone wires leading into the two mines have been cut.

Today the automobiles of Enoch Blower, fire boss; Herbert Porper, guard; Pete McKinley, mine superintendent, and Oral Daugherty, another official, were stoned by protesting miners, although nobody was hurt.

LAWMAKERS SEE POWER AS ISSUE

15 Senators and 22 Representatives Urge Election of Liberal President

WASHINGTON, March 20.—(AP)—A joint declaration that the power question will be a major issue in the fall campaigns and that the "power trust" is trying to influence the nomination of presidential candidates was laid before the nation today by 15 senators and 22 representatives.

Issued through the National Popular Government League, an organization formed in 1913 to fight for measures giving greater popular control in government, the statement said the political significance of this move "cannot be over-estimated and must challenge the attention of those interested in any progressive movement or measure."

The declaration was carried on the cover of a 47-page pamphlet reviewing the records of President Hoover and democratic presidential candidates on the power question and forecasting what each would do in connection with it if elected.

The document was prepared by Judson King, league director, with the congressional signers subscribing only to the frontispiece declaration.

Headed the "power records of the presidential candidates, a nonpartisan analysis for the information of voters," the statement over the signatures of the 37 senate and house members, said:

"We regard the power question in its economic, financial, industrial and social aspects as one of the most important issues before the American people in this campaign of 1932.

"Its political significance cannot be over-estimated and must challenge the attention of those interested in any progressive movement or measure. The reason is plain. The combined utility and banking interests, headed by the power trust, have the most powerful and widely organized political machine ever known in our history.

"This machine co-operates with other reactionary economic, industrial and financial groups. It is strenuously working to control the nomination of candidates for the presidency and the congress of both dominant political parties."

That is as far as the congressional signers went.

The document concluded that President Hoover, if re-elected, would "remain a power trust president."

Taking up the positions of democratic presidential possibilities, it said Speaker Garner would "aid and sign such measures as the Norris Muscle Shoals bill and select appointees to various positions dealing with power having the public viewpoint."

Governor Roosevelt, it added, would "assist and sign measures for public ownership, operation and adequate distribution of power for major public power sites."

Former Governor Smith's record on power was declared to be "mixed and has become more so since 1928, making it difficult to forecast future action," although it was said he would "favor the Norris bill for public operation of Muscle Shoals and like sites, but use his influence for private distribution of the power."

Newton D. Baker was classed as a "public interest" power man 10 years ago, but the document said he had grown "far more conservative" since and would "make a power trust president."

"From the viewpoint of the banking and utility interests," it continued, "Governor Ritchie would doubtless make as safe and sound a president as Mr. Hoover. In this respect they differ only in party labels."

The front-page statement was signed by seven republican independents, seven democrats and the one farmer-labor senator, Shipstead, of Minnesota. The republicans were:

Johnson, California; Norris, Nebraska, listed as one of the founders and still a member of the league's executive committee; Nye and Frazier, North Dakota; Brookhart, Iowa; Cutting, New Mexico, and Howell, Nebraska.

The democrats were Walsh and Wheeler, Montana; McKellar, Tennessee; Costigan, Colorado; Dill, Washington; Gore, Oklahoma, and Long, Louisiana.

Fourteen democratic members of the house, seven republicans, and the lone farmer-labor member, Kvale, of Minnesota, signed the declaration. The democrats were:

Rainey, Illinois; Cannon, Missouri; Collins, Mississippi; Evans, Missouri; Disney, Oklahoma; Hill, Washington; Howard, Nebraska; Johnson, Oklahoma; Martin, Oregon; Norton, Nebraska; Patterson, Alabama; Rankin, Mississippi; Romjue, Missouri, and Thomason, Texas.

The republicans were Amlie and Schneider, Wisconsin; Christgau and Selvig, Minnesota; Horr, Washington; LaGuardia, New York, and Sinclair, North Dakota.

Four signers outside of congress were Judge Allen J. Roulahc, Sheffield, Ala.; Donald R. Richberg, Chicago attorney; John A. Simpson, Oklahoma, president of the National Farmers Union, and Judge George W. Woodruff, Berwyn, Pa., solicitor of the department of the interior on the Roosevelt administration.

ROOSEVELT IS SILENT ON CAPITOL STATEMENT

ALBANY, N. Y., March 20.—(AP)—Governor Roosevelt declined to comment today on the statement issued through the National Popular Government League and indorsed by 37 members of congress that the power issue would be dominant in the coming presidential campaign and that the "power trust" is trying to influence the nomination of candidates.

"I don't want to make any snap statements," the governor said. "I want time to think it over."

Mr. Roosevelt was "classified" by the document as a candidate who, if elected, would labor toward "public ownership, operation and adequate distribution of power for major public power sites."

H. B. HAYES, 72, DIES AT EASTANOLLEE HOME

H. B. Hayes, 72, father of F. E. Hayes, who is connected with the postoffice at Candler field, died at 9 o'clock Sunday night at his home in Eastanollee, Ga. Mr. Hayes, who was widely known in that section, was one of the most prominent citizens in his community.

Funeral services will be conducted at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the Liberty Hill church, near Toccoa. In addition to his son here, Mr. Hayes is survived by four other sons and five daughters in Eastanollee and another daughter, Miss Mabel Hayes, of New York city.

Street Loitering Hit.

Street loitering is the first step to crime, the Rev. B. Johnson, pastor of the Temple A. M. He said that loitering threw young men into contact with criminals and often resulted in making criminals out of the boys who otherwise would have led good lives.

Sales Tax Backers To Plan Drive in Meeting Today

Democratic Leaders Determined To Force Through Bill Designed To Balance Federal Budget.

BY CECIL B. DICKSON.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—(AP)—Democratic leaders will meet tomorrow to plan a desperate, last-minute drive to put through the strife-torn house the controverted sales tax provision in the billion-dollar revenue bill.

Flushed with three major victories over their leaders on issues to tax the wealthy more heavily, the bipartisan anti-sales tax bloc plans to resume the offensive with renewed fervor Tuesday when a show-down is reached on the $600,000,000 sales tax item.

Representative Rainey, the democratic leader, said today he expected opposition to the sales levy to be less intense after the ways and means committee offers further concessions to the 2.25 per cent manufacturers' excise tax in the way of exemptions that virtually will exclude all food.

"We expect the sentiment to swing back to the sales tax, after the house learns that revenue to balance the budget cannot be raised as equitably otherwise," the Illinois democrat said.

Approval Seen.

He added he expected the sales levy to be approved.

On the other side, Representative LaGuardia, republican, New York, independent leader, said "there will be no difficulty in getting a show-down on the sales tax Tuesday, and we are confident it will be defeated."

Acting Chairman Crisp served notice he would resist efforts to send the bill back to the ways and means committee in the event the sales levy is rejected. The Georgia democrat, sponsor of the measure, insists that if the house takes such action, it assumes the responsibility for a substitute program along the line of the treasury's proposals for heavy excise and nuisance taxes and an increase in postage.

The strategy of Representatives Doughton, democrat, North Carolina, and LaGuardia calls for returning the bill to the committee to find the revenue they fail to produce through amendments accepted by the house.

To Offer Amendment.

LaGuardia plans to offer an amendment proposing levying a tax of one-quarter of 1 per cent of the sale value of all stock transactions, which he claims will net many millions. He also will propose amendments to eliminate consolidated and affiliated returns by corporations and to make holding companies pay income levies.

"If there are any more threats made on the floor against the sales tax opponents, there is going to be some pretty plain talking as to who is responsible for suggesting the levy," LaGuardia said in referring to Rainey's statement yesterday the house was bordering on communism by imposing the war-time surtax rates on big incomes.

The acuteness of the situation brought to a head by the summary adjournment of the house in the middle of the session yesterday, left the general membership somewhat disturbed. However, Rainey said he thought by letting the "runaway house cool off" over the week-end, a beneficial effect would be had on all factions.

On Minor Bill.

While the ways and means committee considers further amendments for exemptions to the sales tax tomorrow, the house will devote itself to minor legislation, and both republican and democratic leaders will endeavor to realign their forces for the Tuesday session.

Speaker Garner and the other democratic leaders are determined to pass a bill to meet the treasury deficit in 1933, estimated at $1,241,000,000, and are receiving support of Representative Snell, of New York, the republican leader. Garner said the most important thing before congress was the passing of a bill to balance the budget and restore federal financial stability.

Snell said the procedure under which the democrats brought up the bill was so open that it was imperiled from the beginning. The anti-gag rule proceedure, advocated by the democrats for years when they were in the minority, opened the way for every member to offer any amendment he may desire for the consideration of the house. It was in this way that the opponents to the sales provision gained the opportunity to force the war-time surtax rates into the bill, along with a boost to 7 per cent in the maximum normal income tax rate and to disallow credits to American taxpayers on levies paid to foreign governments, by overwhelming votes.

FISH ASSERTS SALES MEASURE WOULD HAVE BAD EFFECT

CHICAGO, March 20.—(AP)—Representative Hamilton Fish Jr., (republican) of New York, said tonight that the tax bill reported out by the house ways and means committee would have an adverse effect on business conditions if passed by congress.

Taxes on large fortunes would be increased from 20 to 40 per cent under the measure, the New York congressman said, and it would result in money being placed in tax exempt securities instead of industrial operations.

Congressman Fish arrived in Chicago today for a debate with Senator Smith W. Brookhart, (republican) of Iowa, on the subject, "Should the United States Recognize Russia?"

CONGRESSMAN GRANFIELD WILL VOTE FOR MEASURE

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., March 20.—(AP)—Congressman William J. Granfield will vote for the sales tax, although frankly reluctant to do so. He made this statement in the course of an address this morning at the Knights of Columbus communion breakfast here. It was the first time that he had definitely placed himself among the supporters of the disputed sales tax plan.

EDWARD PLUMMER DIES IN CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, March 20.—(AP)—Edward Clarence Plummer, vice chairman of the shipping board since 1923, died here tonight after an illness of two years.

He was born in Freeport, Maine, November 23, 1863 but his permanent residence was in Bath.

An enthusiastic devotee of seafaring interests and himself the fifth of as many generations of shipbuilders in his pioneer New England family, the 69-year-old shipping board official's marine activities included service as a sailor in his youth and authorship in his later years of books relating to the sea.

He was temporarily commissioned during the Spanish-American War as assistant paymaster in the navy, and served on the water. Although funeral arrangements have not been made, it Arlington national cemetery.

He was appointed to the shipping board in 1921 by President Harding and held various committee assignments thereon, including chairmanship of the important committees on legislation and ocean mail contracts and trade routes and ship operation.

The body will be carried Tuesday to Calhoun for funeral services and interment.

NORTHERN IRISH FEAR VIOLENCE

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, March 20.—(AP)—Authorities of northern Irelalnd watched an increasingly serious situation in the Irish Free State, where President Eamon de Valera is intent upon further severance of the ties to England, with anxiety and alarm today.

Drilling has been resumed illegally by De Valera's Irish republican army in various parts of the Free State, officials here said. There was a feeling that the attack from ambush on a party of men cycling to a Hibernian Hall in County Londonderry on St. Patrick's Day might be made a pretext for active aggression in the northern territory.

A Thompson sub-machine gun has been used in Irish republican army maneuvers in at least one instance close to the border.

The automobile of Coroner J. H. Murphy was stolen at Dundalk last week and was understood to have been used with two other cars for the transportation of rifles into northern Ireland from the arms dump at Louth. The stolen car was recovered at Newry in County Down.

Prime Minister Viscount Craigavon had to pass southward through Portadown yesterday on his way to propose the health of the bride at a wedding in Belfast. Police arranged for a football match of the Irish league at Portadown to be prolonged five minutes to allow the prime minister to pass through the town without interruption.

The northern government dealt promptly with the ambushing of the Hibernian party, which was fired upon near the town of Magherafelt, by offering a reward of 500 pounds sterling for information leading to the identification and arrest of the assailants. Viscount Craigavon visited in a hospital the two men wounded in the attack to express his personal sympathy.

The suggestion that if President de Valera's government abolishes the oath to the king of England and retains land annuities which England regards as payable to her the matter would be referred to the League of Nations at Geneva was viewed here with general skepticism.

There was a feeling that the British government never would allow interference by a third party in such matters. Abolition of the oath and retention of the annuities are two of the intentions of the Free State's new president, who campaigned before the election of the new dail eireann on that issue and who since has declared that the Free State is not bound to require the oath or pay the annuities under the treaty which set up the Free State ten years ago.

DE VALERA DISCLAIMS VIOLENCE RESPONSIBILITY

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, March 20.—(AP)—Eamon De Valera, new president of the Irish Free State, today disclaimed for his people any responsibility if, as Great Britain has warned him, disorders arise out of his intention to withhold allegiance and land annuities from England.

"At this stage, I shall only say that if the bitterness and differences are revived, the fault will not lie with the Irish people," the president said in reply to the tacit warning of the British government.

TRAPPER DELAYS START OF HUNT FOR FAWCETT

RIO DE JANEIRO, March 20.—(UP)—Sephan Rattin, the Swiss trapper who believes he has located the missing British explorer, Colonel P. H. Fawcett in the Brazilian jungles, tonight temporarily postponed his expedition to the relief of Fawcett.

The British embassy requested Rattin to delay his trip, explaining that it is expecting instructions from its government regarding the search.

PLANE CRASH TOLL MOUNTS TO SEVEN

Accountant Succumbs To Give Death Clean Sweep in Tragedy.

SAN BERNARDINO, Cal., March 20.—(AP)—The death of another passenger today increased to seven the toll of lives lost last night in the crash of an American Airways passenger plane near Calimesa, Cal.

Arthur Thomas, Tucson, Ariz., accountant, died today in a Redlands hospital. He was the only occupant of the plane to escape immediate death.

Officials of the American Airways and representatives of the department of commerce assembled here for an investigation with San Bernardino county officials into the cause of the crash. Coroner A. N. U'Rren said an inquest will be held tomorrow.

Flying in a fog, the airplane, piloted by Harold J. Kelsey, of Los Angeles, with H. H. Campbell, of Dallas, as co-pilot, struck a high tension wire and crashed in an orchard when the pilot failed in a five-minute attempt to recover equilibrium.

Witnesses expressed the opinion the pilot became confused in the dense mist, although the ship was exactly on its course.

The main gasoline tank exploded and the plane became a pyre. Portions of the ship were scattered over an area 200 feet square. Twelve rows of trees were mowed down in the 75-yard plunge of the big trimotored ship across the ground.

The power line broke and the whole district was thrown into temporary darkness except for the leaping flames of the airplane.

Calimesa is 20 miles southeast of here. The plane was en route from Phoenix, Ariz., to Glendale, a suburb of Los Angeles, and was flying down a pass after clearing the San Bernardino mountains.

The explosion probably saved Thomas from immediate death. It blew him and his seat partly through a door, and his fastenings were cut by persons who had reached the scene before flames entirely enveloped the wreckage.

Two of the bodies were not recovered until early today.

Besides Kelsey and Campbell, the dead are: Albert Coburn, 21, son of Frederic Coburn, New York, who Thursday relinquished the presidency of the American Airways; H. A. McKellar, 42, employe of the Firestone Tire & Rubber Company, Los Angeles; C. M. Goldsmith, clothing manufacturer of St. Louis, and R. L. Robinson, of Yonkers, N. Y.

any county which fails to provide a primary.

In Georgia, Governor Roosevelt is opposed for the nomination by G. H. Howard, Fulton superior court judge, admittedly a stalking horse for John N. Garner, of Texas, speaker of the house of representatives. There has never been a threat of serious opposition in this state, where he spends several months each year at his Warm Springs home, since his name first loomed as the next probable candidate of his party.

A list of the politically prominent men and women in Georgia who, despite inter-party alignments of the past, are supporting Governor Roosevelt would read like a "Who's Who" of the democratic party of Georgia. Both United States senators, every member of the house delegation in congress, the present governor and past governors, the present national committeeman and the former national committeeman, the present and former chairmen of the state executive committee, more than 99 per cent of the members of the general assembly and 95 per cent of the newspapers have declared for him.

Governor Roosevelt's strength in the legislature was demonstrated conclusively in both the extra and regular sessions of 1931. The first unanimously indorsed him, by a viva voce vote, for the nomination and the second one passed a roll call resolution lauding his record as a statesman and inviting him to appear before the Georgia lawmakers at any time suitable to his convenience.

"Dry" Agitation Boomerangs.

Efforts have been made to stir up "dry" opposition but the appeals to get support for Judge Howard-for William Randolph Hearst-for Speaker Garner have been of note chiefly because they have proven boomerangs.

In an address before the Fulton county club on Saturday, Mrs. Z. V. Peterson, prominent in church and school activity and known throughout Georgia, disposed of this prohibition bugaboo.

Commenting first on the fact that Speaker Garner's entry-by-proxy—a palpably unwelcome gesture from the first—in the Georgia primary was promoted by one of the most notorious wets in the country, Mrs. Peterson said:

"Speaker Garner is regarded in Washington as a moderate wet. He voted against the eighteenth amendment. A few days after the Texas democrats held their meeting at San Antonio and put him out as a favorite son, the president of the Texas W. C. T. U. wrote him a letter in which she said that before her organization could or would indorse his candidacy it wanted to know his position on the prohibition issue.

"Speaker Garner replied to that letter—but he hasn't yet told the W. C. T. U. how he stands on prohibition."

Support of Drys Urged.

Stating frankly that Governor Roosevelt favors state control of the prohibition problem, former Representative N. F. Culpepper, of Greenville, who was co-author of the resolution passed by the Georgia legislature which ratified the eighteenth amendment, made a speech Saturday in which he appealed to prohibitionists to support Governor Roosevelt.

Prohibition is not, Culpepper said in a speech at Decatur, the dominant issue in the coming national campaign. Economic issues, he argued, far outweigh the importance to the country of the solution, either now or later, of the wet and dry issue. And it is Governor Roosevelt's position, he explained, that economic issues are paramount.

When the announcement was made that Georgia would hold a preferential primary, Governor Roosevelt wrote Miss Stella Akin, secretary of the state committee, that he would enter. When he was informed that Georgia friends had contributed the $1,000 entrance fee he promptly announced that he would contribute another $1,000 to the use of the Warm Springs Foundation. Within recent months, he has been insured for $500,000 under policies payable to the foundation.

'Proxy' Cleatons Puzzled

Another view of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Cleaton, elderly Monroe (Ga.) couple, is shown above. They are depicted sitting on the front steps of their little home, discussing with wonderment the strange fate which forced them to serve as parents-by-proxy of Texas' Garner. Mr. Cleaton denies that he is "the late John Garner" or "the late" anybody else. He is 90 now, and going strong.

GARNER 'PARENTS' FOUND IN GEORGIA

younger than her husband, chuckled at a remark that she appeared to be on her way to the White House, and said she guessed not unless Roosevelt invited them.

There is something of grandeur about the old gentleman. He and his wife do reflect "the homely virtues that have given backbone to this great nation," They do, indeed.

There is one monument to this man. There is a railroad station named for him a short distance from Monroe. And he appreciates that.

When the call to war came he joined the first troops to leave from his section. He later joined the Confederate cavalry and served as a fighter and a bugler for General Robert E. Lee for more than a year.

He recalls being ill with the measles and sleeping out in the snow at night with one blanket under him and another over him and fighting and riding by day.

"The worst cussin' out I got during the war," he said, "was in Tennessee. I hadn't eaten in three whole days. I was riding by a farmhouse and I saw an old gander. I just took my rope and lassoed him by the neck and pulled him up.

"There was an old lady there and she gave me the worst cussin' I ever got in my life. I rode on about a mile and built me a fire. And as fast as one part of that gander would cook I'd eat him. I didn't have any bread or salt, but he tasted fine.

"Tennessee was almost my home for a long time. I was around Murfreesboro and the battle of Stones river. I chased them and got chased there. I had two horses shot from under me there. One bullet went through my horse's neck and into my leg. I had bullet holes through my clothes. And once a piece of cannon ball scraped the top of my head and I had such a headache I was almost blind for three days. But I never had one after that. They were great times. And I had a great time.

"But I'm going to live until I die. And if I could get to the polls I'd vote for Roosevelt."

There is about this man Cleaton and his wife more than just the homely virtues that have given backbone to this nation.

He, more than any other veteran, seems to have had the idea of peace. He fought all through the war and when it was done he put away his uniform and all the trappings of war. And he came back to Georgia and fought the battle of the reconstruction.

And not once has he been to a reunion. "I wanted to forget all about war," he said. "I like for my old friends to visit me but I don't care to revive memories of the war and reconstruction days."

There is much that is fine about the old man as he sits by his fire and enjoys living "until he dies."

"And, so you think Roosevelt is the man for the democrats, and you think he can beat the republicans?" he was asked again.

"Yes, sir," he chuckled. "If after he is nominated some rascal doesn't get in from his own party and run against him and split the vote.

"And it's real funny about that picture. I guess they just didn't know what they were doing."

Which, if I recall correctly, were almost the words used by someone 1,932 years ago who gave the world an example in forgiveness.

Aiding Democrats Laid to Gotham Bank

NEW YORK, March 20.—(AP)—An accusation that the County Trust Company of New York advanced "large sums" of money to the democratic national campaign committee in 1928 was disclosed Saturday when Supreme Court Justice Peter Schmuck denied the bank's motion for a bill of particulars.

In an affidavit signed by A. Hayne de Yampert, of counsel for the bank, the accusation is attributed to Patrick F. Kenny, whom the trust company is suing to collect on a $20,000 note.

Yampert's affidavit says Kenny made the accusation in his defense of the suit. The money was advanced, Kenny is alleged to have charged, in violation of a law prohibiting corporations from making such contributions.

presidential nomination, described his mission in this state to be to "impress upon the democrats of Maine the desirability of the nomination of Governor Roosevelt as the democratic candidate for president."

Roosevelt, he said, is the "only man the democrats can nominate who will be absolutely sure of election."

The 75 democrats who greeted Farley here assured him Roosevelt's candidacy was arousing enthusiasm in this state. Farley said he would not, however, seek an instructed delegation in the democratic state convention March 28 and 29. It has not been the custom of the democratic party in Maine to instruct its delegations to the national convention, although in 1928 after a bitter fight in the state convention, the party departed from its practice by binding its delegation for Smith.

Farley expressed the opinion that Roosevelt's assured strength in the convention would be augmented this week by the presidential preference primary in Georgia, which he predicted his candidate would carry 10 to 1.

He said he expected Iowa's delegation, to be chosen on the same day as Maine's, also would favor Roosevelt.

So far as the New York governor's prospects for election are concerned, Farley said he saw no reason to change his judgment of several months ago that Roosevelt would carry every state west of the Mississippi "possibly excepting Iowa, Michigan and California," and that he would win in "all but four or five states in the east."

RASKOB DENIES FIRM SUPPORTED SMITH IN 1928

NEW YORK, March 20.—(AP)—A charge that the County Trust Company contributed to Alfred E. Smith's presidential campaign in 1928, in violation of the corrupt practices act, was described as "entirely false" today by John J. Raskob, chairman of the democratic national committee.

The charge was made yesterday by Patrick F. Kenny, Yonkers contractor, in his explanation of a suit brought against him by the bank to collect on a $20,000 note. Kenny told reporters his defense to the suit was based on the contention the note was part of an alleged scheme to cover up contributions by the bank.

BROOKHART OPPOSITION HOLDS STAGE IN IOWA

DES MOINES, Iowa, March 20.—(AP)—With Iowa's 25 delegates to the republican national convention "tucked away" for President Hoover, interest in the party's state convention here Tuesday was expected today to center around the field opposing United States Senator Smith W. Brookhart.

Virtually all county caucuses have voted to instruct their delegates to send Hoover men to the national convention at Chicago. As a result, ratification of administration supporters for district and delegates-at-large is expected without serious contest.

The convention will take no part in the senatorial primary fight, but candidates and their friends will be on hand in an effort to corral support.

Four men already are opposing Brookhart, who has independent tendencies, for the republican nomination in the June 6 primary. There is a strong possibility that there will be another entry—Henry Field, of Shenandoah, seedman and operator of a radio station.

Field is expected to announce his decision tomorrow when he arrives with a group of friends. Sometime ago he said he was not interested, but since then he has been urged to enter the race. His decision, however, will depend upon promises of support.

Brookhart's present opponents are George Cosson, of Des Moines, former attorney-general; Louis H. Cook, of Des Moines, chairman of the state board of assessment and review, and William Galloway and L. E. Eichelberger both of Waterloo.

If Field is a candidate, observers say he would be strongest in the rural districts, where Brookhart has always polled his greatest strength. Brookhart will be here tomorrow and is expected to stay in town for the convention.

CUBA MAY WITHDRAW FROM SUGAR PACT

HAVANA, Cuba, March 20.—(AP)—Dr. Walfredo Rodriguez Blanca, president of the National Association of Sugar Cane Planters, tonight said that he would move for withdrawal of Cuba from the Brussels stabilization agreement before the Cuban National Sugar Institute if it meets tomorrow as scheduled.

The sugar producers met at Brussels last month and Java agreed to limit her 1933 quota to 1,350,000 tons provided Cuba consented to limit her 1932 quota to 2,350,000 tons. If Cuba consented to her quota, European and Peruvian producers agreed to reduce their 1932 export quotas under the Chadbourne plan by 15 per cent. Cuba declined to accept these figures and countered with her own proposal.

ROOSEVELT SWEEP FORECAST BY PAGE

Loyalty to Governor in "Emphatic Way" Is Asked by Representative.

Georgia democrats have been called upon by W. E. Page, Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt's personal representative in the state, to show their loyalty to a distinguished resident "in an emphatic way" by participating in primaries to be held in practically every county in the state Wednesday.

Page, predicting that Roosevelt will sweep the state, said:

"Governor Roosevelt will sweep Georgia in Wednesday's presidential preferential primary. Advices received at the Roosevelt headquarters in the Piedmont hotel give assurance that he will carry every single county by large majorities.

"We have no anxiety whatever about the outcome of the election but we are very anxious indeed that Georgians shall go to the polls in large numbers and pile up a big vote for Governor Roosevelt. It is important that the state, which he claims as his part-time home and in which he lives several months each year, should indicate its loyal support in an emphatic way. A big vote and an overwhelming majority in Georgia for Governor Roosevelt will have a psychological influence throughout the United States.

"Representatives of the Roosevelt clubs who attended the luncheon meeting at the Piedmont hotel on Friday all brought glowing reports of the certainty of Governor Roosevelt's carrying their counties.

Great Enthusiasm Shown.

"Our reports indicate that the polls will be open Wednesday in all except a very few counties. Efforts are being made to have the county executive committees in these counties hold elections.

"Rallies held by county Roosevelt-for-President Clubs all over the state Saturday were characterized by a great enthusiasm for Governor Roosevelt and the determination to get out as big a vote as possible.

"Georgia democrats resent the suggestion made over the radio on Wednesday evening by a spokesman for the Hearst newspapers, chief sponsors for Judge G. H. Howard, Governor Roosevelt's opponent in the primary, that it will be all right for any who vote in Georgia's primary to vote the republican ticket in November if the democratic nominee is unacceptable to them.

"Everybody knew that William Randolph Hearst, chief sponsor of Judge Howard's candidacy, has been one of the bitter enemies of the democratic party and supported Hoover in the 1928 election, but no one expected that Mr. Hearst or his representatives would so boldly and brazenly invite republicans and other anti-democrats to vote in the democratic primary and then bolt it in the general election. The suggestion from the Hearst radio spokesman is in effect an invitation to republicans and to those who profess no party loyalty to go into a democratic party primary for the purpose of knifing a great democrat.

"As a good democrat Judge Howard should have immediately repudiated the action of his sponsors, and it is not too late for him to do so now. Unless he does so, Georgia democrats will construe his silence as acquiesence in the outrageous and dishonorable proposal.

"During the past week the Howard headquarters announced the organization of Howard-Garner clubs in about a dozen counties. From every one of the counties named the Roosevelt headquarters have had letters and telegrams from leading citizens to the effect that diligent search fails to reveal any such clubs in these counties and in each instance the writers of the telegrams and letters add that their counties are overwhelmingly for Governor Roosevelt. The latest telegram of this kind comes from J. W. Johnson, of Baxley, Appling county, who wires: 'There is no Howard-Garner club in this county. Appling county is strong for Roosevelt.'

None in Jeff Davis.

"W. L. Stone, of Hazelhurst, president of the Jeff Davis County Roosevelt Club, writes further as to the alleged Howard-Garner club in Jeff Davis county. He says that there is not only no such club in his county but that Otto Middleton, who is claimed by the Howard headquarters as president of the Jeff Davis County Howard-Garner Club, is not even a registered voter and has not been for several years and could not sponsor any sort of an organization in Jeff Davis county.

"This disposes of every single one of the so-called Howard clubs that have been announced. Every one of them seems to have been a pure myth.

"New Roosevelt-for-President Clubs have been organized during the past two or three days in several counties.

"A Douglas County Club, with 600 members, is headed by W. J. Dozier, of Douglasville.

"J. B. Williamson, of Ellaville, is president of the Schley County Club.

"Mrs. Oscar McKenzie, of Montezuma, heads the Macon County Club.

"A club was organized Friday night at Barnesville with Junius Cason as president and Mrs. Harvey Kennedy as president of the women's organization. Lawrence Camp, democratic state chairman, spoke at this meeting.

"New clubs were organized Friday in Jefferson county with R. G. Price, of Louisville, president, and in Rockdale with C. R. Vaughn, of Conyers, president.

"Three new clubs were formed Saturday. The Clay County Club was organized with Zach Arnold, of Fort Gaines, president; the Townes County Club with Jack Lance, president of Young Harris college, as president, and the Charlton County Club with A. F. McQueen, of Folkston, as president."

Jury Is Deadlocked In Seed Loan Trial

DOTHAN, Ala., March 20.—(AP)—The jury in the trial of eight Houston county citizens charged with conspiracy to obstruct justice and defraud the government in making seed loans reported to Judge C. B. Kennamer in United States district court at 3 p. m., today that it was unable to reach a verdict.

Judge Kennamer ordered the jury to resume its deliberations and excused the defendants until 9 a. m., tomorrow, when the jury will report again. The jury received the case shortly after 4 p. m. yesterday and was locked up for the night at 9:50 p. m., after efforts to reach a verdict had failed.

GRAF ZEPPELIN LEAVES ON FLIGHT TO BRAZIL

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, March 20.—(AP)—The Graf Zeppelin began the first of a series of flights to Pernambuco, Brazil, at 12:34 a. m. today.

The Graf was under command of Dr. Hugo Eckener and carried nine passengers and 220 pounds of freight and mail. A landing at Pernambuco was planned for some time March 22, with the return voyage scheduled for March 25.

Fugitive 18 Years To Die for Murder

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., March 20.—(AP)—A man who hid in the obscurity of a Pennsylvania mining settlement as Louis Ross, admitted Sunday that he is Frank Pauletta, who escaped from jail here 18 years ago—a few days before he was to have been hanged for murder of a fellow miner.

He was captured after a wild chase with a private investigator far down in a Coverdale, Pa., mine some months ago.

Today, still protesting a mistake in his identity, he was resentenced to death and was preparing to leave for the state prison in Moundsville, when he summoned Sheriff W. B. Grimm.

GEORGIA DRYS URGED TO BACK ROOSEVELT

An appeal to prohibitionists to support Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt was made before the DeKalb county Roosevelt-for-President Club at Decatur Saturday by Nathan F. Culpepper, former member of the general assembly and co-author of Georgia's prohibition law and of the resolution passed by the Georgia legislature which ratified the 18th amendment.

While former Representative Culpepper was appealing particularly to prohibitionists in Decatur, Mrs. Edgar Alexander, democratic national committeewoman, was asking Cobb county women to vote for Roosevelt "because he is the most logical man to carry our banner to sure and certain victory in the November election."

Culpepper voted for the adjournment resolution in 1915 which forced the then governor to call an extra session which saw the passage of Georgia's bone dry law, and was co-author with Judge W. H. Hopkins, of Thomasville, of the resolution, in 1916, which ratified the 18th amendment.

"While the attitude of Governor Roosevelt is well known," he said in his Decatur speech, "we have in contrast to his open and frank statement concerning this matter Judge Howard, a substitute and 'proxy' candidate, claiming that he wants to name the 28 delegates from Georgia to the national convention in behalf of Speaker Garner. I regard Garner as a fine man, able statesman and leader, but it is well known that he voted against the 18th amendment.

"Judge Howard is sponsored by Hearst and his newspaper, both dripping wet. Governor Roosevelt insists that prohibition is of minor importance and will be in the coming campaign. Certainly it is subordinate to economic questions, but he makes no effort to conceal the fact that he is in favor of state control of the prohibition question."

In her appeal to women at Marietta, Mrs. Alexander declared that Governor Roosevelt has been, since a young man, steadily fighting the battles of progressive democracy.

"In his definition of the word progressive," she said, "Mr. Roosevelt has answered any criticism his enemies may have made of his change of views on certain international questions. He says: 'Progressives, in the right sense of the word, means those who realize that a government must grow and change; that what is wise in government today my be foolish tomorrow.'"

12 Men Are Injured In Blast in Illinois

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 20.—(AP)—Twelve men were injured tonight in three explosions which rocked the Springfield public high school building, coming as an aftermath of a series of allegedly incendiary fires in other central Illinois towns.

Firemen and near-by residents rushed into the building after the first explosion, believing it had been caused by bursting boilers. They found the boilers were intact and were starting to leave when the second blast came.

Investigators from the state fire marshal's office said the first blast broke gas mains in the basement and started a small fire. Escaping gas was ignited by the fire to cause the other two explosions.

Virginian Vanishes From Italian Liner

NAPLES, Italy, March 20.—(AP)—The disappearance of Ernst Gunther, a 64-year-old merchant of Norfolk, Va., from the liner Conte Biancamano while it was anchored at Phaleron, Greece, on March 10, was reported by the captain of the vessel on its arrival here today.

Gunther was last seen dressed apparently to go ashore with other passengers. He failed to appear on the ship when it sailed from Phaleron. The captain sent a wireless message to the steamship company's agents there, but they reported they were unable to trace the American.

He embarked at New York on February 27 for a Mediterranean cruise. His baggage and identification papers were left on the ship and the captain said he would deliver them to New York authorities when the ships returns to that port on March 30.

NEW YORK'S TASTE OF EARLY SPRING TO BE SHORT-LIVED

NEW YORK, March 20.—(AP)—City dwellers woke from late Sunday sleep today to hear sparrows chirping excited contradiction to the weather bureau's warning that official arrival of spring would be accompanied by lowered temperatures.

Mellow sunshine penetrated into the skyscraper canyons, and in the parks, dogs promenading on leashes sniffed eagerly. Their mistresses strolled in bright spring finery.

But the weather bureau pointed to its charts, as the sun crossed the equator on its northward journey at exactly 2:54 p. m. today, to show temperatures ranging nearly 10 degrees below yesterday's. The mean for the day was 36, three degrees below normal. The forecast is for colder weather tomorrow, with possibility of snow or rain Tuesday or Wednesday.

COMMITTEE ASSAILS SHEEHY SUBORDINATES

NEW YORK, March 20.—(AP)—New York county's new sheriff, John E. Sheehy, recently named to fill the post left vacant by the removal of former Sheriff Thomas M. Farley, was asked today to take definite action regarding two subordinates who were unable to explain their bank accounts to the satisfaction of the Hofstadter committee.

The city affairs committee, one of the organizations which insisted upon the removal of Farley by Governor Roosevelt, sent Sheehy a letter charging that Deputy Sheriffs Peter J. Curran and Joseph Flaherty "are guilty of the same offense for which Sheriff Farley was removed."

Flaherty, said the letter, "was unable to give any credible explanation of bank deposits of $10,540 made during his first four and one-half months as deputy sheriff, and Curran was equally unable to explain bank deposits of well over $100,000.

NEW CLUES FAIL IN KIDNAP SEARCH

'Red' Johnson Returned to Jersey Police for Further Grilling.

HOPEWELL, N. J., March 20.—(AP)—While Charles and Anne Lindbergh spent a dreary Sunday in their childless white house on Sourland mountain, searchers doggedly continued the fruitless hunt for kidnaped, curly-headed Charles Augustus Lindbergh Jr.

Reports and clues continued to lead police along dimmer trails, only to dissolve one by one into the humdrum ramifications of other persons' lives, or misdeeds unrelated to the kidnaping mystery.

Today's developments produced the following dead-ends:

The three men arrested in Hopewell in connection with an alleged automobile theft ring were said by Colonel H. Norman Schwarzkopf, head of state police, to have "no possible connection with the case."

The attempted entering by ladder of the home of J. Seward Johnson, wealthy manufacturer of Highland Park, 20 miles from here, was declared after investigation by Douglas M. Hicks, Middlesex county prosecutor, to yield no link in the Lindbergh case.

Though the Johnsons were convinced the intruder intended kidnaping their 7-week-old daughter, Diana, from the nursery, the man was armed and there was nothing to prove his intent was not merely burglary.

The alleged kidnaping of Albert G. Gregory from his home in Sussex, N. J., was declared by Schwarzkopf to have no relation in the case. The state police head said Gregory's wife established his disappearance was voluntary, to escape appearing in a court case involving his mother-in-law.

Johnson Returned.

Henry (Red) Johnson, sailor suitor of the nurse to the Lindbergh baby, was returned from the aviator's Sourland Mountain estate to Jersey City police tonight, but it was learned from a reliable source that he was to be subjected to additional intensive questioning.

Despite a noncommittal statement by Colonel H. Norman Schwarzkopf about results of the three-day examination of Johnson here it was ascertained that Jersey City police, dissatisfied with correlation of some of his statements, intended continuing the questioning tonight.

"Johnson was questioned," the Schwarzkopf statement said, "and his statements were compared with those he had previously made and also with statements taken from others, and no information of any consequence in this case in addition to his other statements was discovered."

The Schwarzkopf bulletin also disclosed that Miss Theresa Dersi, of Hopewell, had been questioned on March 10 and March 18 and that her home was searched. It was reported that she had identified a rogues' gallery picture of a man who, she said, drove a blue sedan, which became stuck in a muddy lane near her home and that of the Lindberghs on the night of the kidnaping March 1.

The bulletin stated that "nothing of importance" resulted, but that she furnished police with information concerning whereabouts of one of the men who worked on the road leading into the Lindbergh estate. No report had been received about a rogues' gallery identification, he said.

Pursuing the theory that the kidnapers might have placed the child in some family as substitute for their own child of similar age and appearance, whom they could risk transporting elsewhere temporarily, police continued to investigate every report involving children resembling the missing baby.

"Several details are out now," Schwarzkopf said in his afternoon statement, "checking up on children reported to be the Lindbergh baby."

None was mentioned specifically, however, and it was concluded the police placed little hope in any clue yet at hand.

"Our investigation showed that Gregory was supposed to appear before the Sussex county grand jury on the 19th to testify in a case involving his mother-in-law. His wife states the reason he left was because he did not want to appear in court. A note was left behind, pinned to his front door, demanding $2,000 ransom. The handwriting on the note was identified as Gregory's by his wife."

Gregory appeared near South Durham, N. Y., in the Catskill mountains, yesterday and said he had been kidnaped from his home and taken there by four men.

Egg-Rolling Plans Laid at White House

WASHINGTON, March 20.—(AP)—With the return of spring-like weather to the capital, Mrs. Herbert Hoover today laid plans for the annual rolling of Easter eggs on the White House lawn a week from Monday.

The first lady has invited the children of cabinet members, senators, representatives and the heads of various public departments to come into the executive mansion for a personal greeting prior to the egg-rolling on the south lawn.

The usually-locked gates to the lower grounds will be opened to the public probably as early as 9 a. m. on Easter Monday, and the children of Washington invited in to play on the lawn until near nightfall.

KIDNAPED MAN FOUND MANACLED BY CHAIN TO TREE

BERLIN, Md., March 20.—(AP)—Charles W. Brown, 31, who had been missing since Tuesday, was found today manacled by a chain to a tree in Hollygrove swamp, six miles east of here.

The discovery was made by Edward Taylor, a farm youth, who severed the chain and brought Brown to his home here. The man was suffering from hunger and exposure.

Brown told Sheriff William Purnell, of Worcester county, a story of being kidnaped, imprisoned for four days in a dungeon-like room, threatened for not signing two statements which his captors offered and then left chained to the tree.

He said he was waylaid by four masked men Tuesday night but he tore the mask from one man, recognizing him as a prominent Worcester county resident. Brown's story was that the men offered him the statements to sign in exchange for his freedom, threatening to chain him to a still and blow it up and telling him they had kidnaped his 8-year-old daughter. He said that the men took $300 from him.

Police refused to reveal the man named by Brown or the content of the statements and began an investigation.

'WET' UTTERANCE DENIED BY HURLEY

Secretary of War Takes No Dry Stand in Changing Language.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley, who on Thursday in an interview in wet Chicago said he believed the forthcoming republican national convention would adopt "a liberal attitude" on prohibition, suddenly changed his language on his return to Washington where sit the chiefs of the G. O. P. and dry organizations.

While in Chicago the secretary made an address and later was interviewed by a number of reporters, including a staff man of the Associated Press.

The statement regarding the attitude of the convention was made in response to a direct question of the Associated Press staff writer. The question was:

"Do you think the republican convention will adopt a more liberal attitude on the prohibition question?"

The secretary replied:

"I think it will."

Other newspapermen quoted the secretary further:

"A great many people are going to look for wet candidates this year. I think the prohibition question will be settled on the basis of state's rights."

The statements of the secretary were widely circulated and widely discussed, and on his return to Washington he issued a brief asserting that "in his address he did not mention prohibition and at no time did he speak for publication on the subject."

But, whether or not he spoke for publication, the secretary knew he was being interviewed by newspapermen and he made no request that his real views be kept under cover.

From Washington Saturday the secretary failed to say whether he had different views on the subject when he knew he was speaking for publication.

8,080 Men, 400 Million Dollars Chinese Losses

NANKING, China, March 20.—(AP)—Hostilities with Japan in the Shanghai area have cost the Chinese 8,080 lives and $400,000,000 in property loss, Wu Ta-chun, chief of the Chinese department of statistics, estimated today.

His figures showed that 2,000 Chinese were wounded and 10,400 are missing.

Individuals directly affected by the warfare were numbered at 814,084, or 45 per cent of the total Chinese population of Shanghai, while the area occupied by the Japanese forces was estimated at 474 square li (about 182 square miles).

Ten universities and 222 other schools were forced to close, affecting 39,000 students, the survey showed. The value of school property which was destroyed was placed at more than $3,000,000.

Revenue of the Shanghai municipality dropped 45 per cent during the fighting.

It was estimated that 250,000 persons were thrown out of employment.

CRACKERS FACE FOUR EXHIBITIONS THIS WEEK

When a maker of epigrams declared that a prophet was not without honor save in his own country, he most emphatically was not talking about Red Barron, manager of the Atlanta Crackers.

Because Monroe, Ga., is preparing to paint the town red on Thursday night when the testimonial dinner is given the Cracker skipper. And Monroe is Red Barron's home country.

The word from there is that they could sell 600 tickets if the hotel dining room walls were rubber and could be stretched to five or six times their size. As it is just about 150 of the first come-first served applicants will be seated when the cheers and the speaking begin.

There will be plenty of speeches because it seems that about every citizen in Monroe would like to get up and say something nice about Red Barron. Which is just about the tip-off on the boy. When a fellow can spend about 10 years in one community and then get a unanimous vote as one of the best men in town it bespeaks something.

And I suspect that if someone were to drop into any one of the business places or the loafing places about Monroe and speak something derogatory to Red Barron he would receive no less than a bust in the beak. Maybe two. They'll fight for Red Barron at the drop of a hat. And I suspect they might even oblige by dropping the hat.

12 CLUBS IN SOUTHERN LEAGUE.

In the good year 1893, so I learn from a copy of The Atlanta Constitution of June 18, 1893, there was a depression, with prosperity truly just around the corner.

Baseball conditions then were much worse than now. The Southern league had 12 clubs. Count them. Twelve. It was all news to me. Somehow I thought the old outfit had struggled along with eight. It has since its reorganization in 1901. But before that! Land sakes alive!

There was Augusta, Charleston, Memphis, Savannah, Atlanta, Montgomery, New Orleans, Birmingham, Chattanooga, Mobile, Macon and Nashville. All in one league.

HOLD ON, YOU VOLS.

It distresses me to convey the bad news to Brothers Freddie Russell and Blinkey Horn up in Nashville, Tenn-O-See. But facts are facts.

With 12 clubs in the race the best the Nashville Vols could do on June 18, 1893, was to be in twelfth place, a bad last. Times haven't changed much in Nashville. It's a conservative old baseball town.

And the unknown sports writer, commenting on a Memphis series which was to open in Atlanta the next week, said: "Manager Murray says he thinks he can take two out of three of the games to be played here, though he will not have an easy time doing it, for the Memphians play good ball and are not to be sneezed at." Well, they aren't now. Times don't change much in Atlanta where the Crackers, in 1893, were in the old familiar fifth place. Eight or 12 clubs, it doesn't matter to Atlanta or Nashville.

TUNE IN TONIGHT.

Mr. Baxter Williams, one of the Cracker catchers, will appear on The Constitution's news broadcast tonight at 10:30 o'clock. Mr. Williams, who is an expert vocalist, having trained his voice swearing at umpires, will sing two numbers.

Mr. Jimmy Jones, the old maestro (I hope you like it), will wield the baton during the solo numbers. Mr. Jones has wielded a baton over some of the worst barber shop quartets in the world.

Baxter Williams is really good. Between numbers your faithful old reporter and Mr. Jones will present the sports news of the day. And so until 10:30 tonight, good night. All is well.

LADIES' DAY IN THE SPRING.

Mr. Chick Roos, business manager of the Crackers, and the handsome young man with the distinguished tinge of gray at the temples (caused by taking them on the chin at the pass gate) has thought up a new idea for the ladies.

They are to have free days during the spring exhibition games of the Crackers. Which is the first time they have been accorded that privilege during the training time.

If the Cracker officials will work out some system whereby the pass gate, through which the ladies pass, will be separated from the gate used by the mob of kids, the situation will be greatly improved. Ponce de Leon park is being improved right along, new paint and a few other materials giving it a bright outlook.

MAN AND THE SHOTGUN.

A gentleman, who is very wroth indeed, writes that the game preserves do not offer a fair solution of how to propagate and preserve quail because there is so little shooting on them.

Which is true enough. And exactly the point. The farmers can save the state's quail by forbidding shooting on their places for two or three years. There is no reason why they should not do so.

The man with the shotgun is one of the quail's greatest enemies. True enough. Therefore bar him from the land. There are enough of the native quail left to supply the state with game if enough farmers will close their land for a period of two or three years.

QUAIL ON TOAST.

And I always get a chuckle out of that bucolic story of the man from the back country who had heard all his life of the delectable dish of quail on toast.

And who said, when he finally got to a friend's house and had some, that it was nothing but a partridge on a burnt piece of bread.

GENE SARAZEN WINS RICH OPEN; TIE FOR SECOND

New Yorker Shoots Sub-Par Golf; Hagen, Runyan Deadlocked.

CORAL GABLES, Fla., March 20. (UP)—Gene Sarazen, New York's sturdy Italian professional, won the $2,500 first prize in the rich Coral Gables-Miami Biltmore open golf tournament today with an aggregate 287 for the 72-hole medal tournament.

First place in this $10,000 tournament, richest of the winter season in the southeast, boosted Sarazen's winnings for 1932 to $6,375.

Paul Runyan, young metropolitan champion, and Walter Hagen, Detroit, veteran competitor, were tied for second money at 288, dividing a purse of $2,250. Each had the title in his grasp at some time during the Sunday play.

MISSES $1,000 PUTT.

Runyan missed a $1,000 putt of 12 feet which, if sunk, would have given him a tie with Gene. Hagen was headed for victory until he got a bad lie on a water bank on the 71st hole and took a 5, one over par. That so unnerved him that he duplicated for another 5 on the 72d.

Barron, Marquard Guests Tonight

Rube Marquard and Red Barron, coach and manager of the Atlanta baseball team, will be honor guests and principal speakers at 7:30 o'clock tonight at the regular weekly meeting of the Southwest Sunday School Association, at the Cascade Baptist church.

The well-known baseball authorities will speak on the possibilities of amateur baseball and its aid to the development of the game in general.

GOOD PLAN.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, March 20.—(AP)—The National Boxing Association acted today against "parasites who would destroy boxing as a sport for personal gain or to build up a false reputation of ability for their boxer." The suggested method is suspension for life of all involved in scheduling and putting on a "ringer" or fake fight.

McGill and Jones On Air Tonight

Baxter Williams, catcher of the Atlanta Crackers, will feature The Constitution's sports-news broadcast tonight at 10:30 o'clock over WGST.

Williams, who is a popular radio favorite in Tennessee, his home state, will sing two numbers.

In addition to this feature, Ralph McGill and Jimmy Jones, of The Constitution sports staff, will be heard in their first Monday night appearance in two weeks.

DEFOREST AGAIN TRAINS GODWIN

Father-Manager of Southern Light-Heavy Champ, Announces Plans.

By Jack Troy.

Arthur Godwin, father-manager of Bob Godwin, the recognized light-heavyweight champion of the south, paused in Atlanta Sunday en route to Adel, Ga., where he will spend a few days with his family, to announce that Jimmy DeForest again has been secured to train his fighting son, who is a native Georgian.

DeForest will reopen his Long Branch (New Jersey) training camp, where he trained Jim Jeffries and Jack Dempsey before they won their heavyweight championships, within the next 10 days, the elder Godwin announced.

The Godwins will take up headquarters there and also plan to form a stable composed of several promising young prospects.

BORN IN MOULTRIE.

Bob, who was born in Moultrie, Ga., is spending a few days in Adel, enjoying a rest after his bout with Eric Lawson in Washington, D. C., on March 15.

Phar Lap Winner In Agua Caliente

Australian Wonder Horse Sets New Record; Reveille Boy Is Second, Scimitar Third.

AGUA CALIENTE, Baja California, March 20.—(UP)—Upholding with ease the great reputation he had made in Australia, Phar Lap, big red "wonder horse," led 10 American stake horses to the finish in the $50,000 added Agua Caliente handicap today.

Going to the post a heavy favorite to win, Phar Lap did not seem bothered by the delay of six and one-half minutes occasioned by the unruliness of Reveille Boy and Scimitar. He showed class enough to come from behind and set a new track record of 2:02 4-5, which was one-fifth of a second better than the mile and a quarter time established last year by Mike Hall.

Phar Lap by his great victory before 25,000 frenzied fans, now ranks second on the list of world's all-time money winners. By finishing first, two lengths ahead of Reveille Boy, Phar Lap, who runs in the colors of D. J. Davis, netted $50,050, and his total earnings were boosted to $332,350. The horse from "down under" now is topped only by the American horse, Sun Beau, which has earned $376,744 and is classed as the ranking money winner of all time.

The "wonder horse," making his first race on this continent, packed 129 pounds of top weight with Jockey William Elliott up. He broke last, but at the halfway mark Elliott had him in front. At the three-quarter

Touch of Conscience

GENE ATTEMPTS TO SALVE WOUNDS

Must Have Hit Tunney

By Jimmy Jones.

Was the conscience of James Joseph Tunney hurting him just a bit?

Could it have been that Gene Tunney, the aloof, the erudite of fistiana, discovered that he was hurting people's feelings and hurting himself worse in the public eye?

We do not know, for we had long since given Mr. Tunney up as hopeless in so far as being a good fellow is concerned. We are rather proud of our service stripes in the great anti-Tunney army.

But it does seem that Gene, in the latest installment of his life's story in Collier's, has attempted to salve some of the wounds he had previously inflicted on the press, the public, the fight game, the fight promoters and the fight managers—all direct agents in his rise to affluence.

Tunney, as he progressed with his biography, could not prevent little phrases winged with bitterness from cropping out here and there—apparently a throwback to an early inferiority complex.

As he neared his final chapter, something human in Tunney must have clamored for expression—perhaps the compassion of a writer for his subjects. And as he sat in his glasshouse, writing the saga of his life, he must have taken stock of himself and realized that he had thrown a great many stones.

In next to the final installment of "A Man Must Fight," the title of the serial, Tunney is more reluctant to comment in the first person, singular, and makes some frank admissions which in no way are self-glorifying.

GENEROUS.

Jack Dempsey, whom he previously had goaded into a hot retort through pointed remarks about the courage of the man he dethroned, comes in for some generous treatment. In speaking of his first meeting with Jack on a ferryboat, one finds such a flow of adjectives as "gracious, kindly, mirthful, generous and democratic . . ." his first tribute to the ex-champion.

There is even a touch of pathos in his description of Dempsey's defeat and his subsequent humiliation over loss of his title.

Even the newspapermen—the odious gentlemen of the press—upon whom Tunney had repeatedly turned the blast of his cynicism, were given a few pats on the back.

ADMIRES RICE.

He refers to Grantland Rice as a man "I have always admired and respected."

He speaks affectionately of Ray Campbell, brilliant young Cleveland newspaperman who was one of the few to pick him to take Dempsey's title. Campbell is now dead.

He admitted that during the dark days before the Chicago fight when he lay in constant fear of trickery, that there was only one man he trusted—a Chicago Tribune sports writer.

And lastly, Gene the proud, Gene the haughty, admits of himself that—

He lacked diplomacy; that overnight he became the most unpopular of champions; that he goaded and gloated; that he could have been a more gracious winner and richly deserved what he got.

Gone are the alibis, the petty boasts and unguarded criticisms of rival fighters. We are thinking that Tunney is actually human, after all, and that he really made a fine effort to square himself with all concerned.

We are awaiting the final chapter to see if we have been wrong before waiving our seniority in the great ranks of anti-Tunney men.

Jimmy Livingstone Ties Course Mark

Jimmy Livingstone, professional at the Ingleside Country Club, tied the course record with a 68 Sunday afternoon. He was playing in a foursome with Robert Schwab, president of the club; Monie Ferst and H. Berolzheimer, a visitor from New York and London.

Livingstone's record equals that of Gene Cook, twice former Georgia amateur champion, who set the low mark last year.

In his sub-par round Livingstone's putting was the outstanding feature. He required only 20 putts for the 18 greens, which is some sort of a record in itself.

CRAWFORD WINS OUTBOARD RACE

Six Drivers Disqualified for Jumping Gun at Miami.

MIAMI, Fla., March 20.—(AP)—Home first in a spectacular race that saw six drivers disqualified for beating the starter's gun, William Crawford Jr., of New York and Miami, won the Colonel E. H. R. Green trophy and the unlimited outboard motorboat championship of America here today.

Crawford's first place, won with a speed of 38.516 miles an hour, gives him 400 points and brought his total for the two-day competition to 969. He won the first hole yesterday and finished eighth in the second.

Charles H. Harrison, of London, England, champion of Great Britain, was among the six disqualified today as they jockeyed for position at the start and in their eagerness slipped across the line ahead of the gun. However, Harrison stood second in the point total for the trophy, with 722 points racked up Saturday as he finished second in both heats. He was leading by 99 points as he went out for today's race.

G. P. Ellsworth, of Durham, N. C., who finished second today, placed third for the trophy with 653 points. Clarence Collins, of Troy, N. Y., winner of yesterday's second, stood fourth with 625 points. Travis Chestnut, of Jacksonville, was fifth with 613 points.

Besides Harrison, the drivers disqualified were Horace Tennis, of Chicago; Collins, H. H. Libby, of Kansas City; Tommy Estlick, of Waukegan, Ill., and Cal Leeth, of Cullman, Alabama.

Edmundo Turci, of Gardone, Italy, driver of the Italia, owned by the Marchese Dal Pazzo, of Gardone, and an early favorite to take the Green trophy to foreign shores, finished tenth in the first heat and was unable to start in the second and third because of motor trouble. He dislocated a finger on his left hand in a desperate attempt to start his motor yesterday.

N. G. I. C. To Meet With Bean Today

A regular spring meeting of the North Georgia Interscholastic Conference will be held at 5:30 o'clock this afternoon in the office of President Joe Bean at the Atlanta Athletic Club.

Final details of the baseball schedule will be completed along with a discussion of numerous other spring sports.

CATHOLIC VICTOR.

CHICAGO, March 20.—(AP)—St. Patrick's Academy of Chicago defeated St. Mel of Chicago, 22 to 20, in the tourney final tonight for the national Catholic basketball championship of the United States.

JOHN CHAPMAN TO PLAY THIRD TUESDAY--'RED'

Messenger Works; Manager To Let Class Problem Solve Itself.

By Jimmy Jones.

After spending another Sabbath in more or less peaceful pondering over his vexatious problem of A and B men, David I. Barron, the red-headed rajah of the Atlanta Crackers, has about decided to let matters work out their own solution.

"There's no use for me to do any more figuring—I see that—so I'm going to keep on letting the boys play until the best man stands out at each position," Barron declared.

When superior players have stepped to the front, then Barron will begin once more his effort at pruning his squad within the league requirement of 12 Class A players and five Class B men.

PLAY FOUR GAMES.

The Crackers have four exhibitions booked with Tom Daly's Toronto Leafs for Tuesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week, plus two with Gabby Street's world champion St. Louis Cardinals on Friday and Saturday of next week.

The Toronto club showed Saturday it was capable of giving the Crackers plenty of opposition by holding them to a one-run victory and Barron feels he is fortunate in having such a team on his own grounds.

"There's nothing like actual playing to tell the worth of a player and I have three weeks yet in which to pick my squad before the old bell rings," Barron concluded. The Cracker chief announced last night that he would star Johnny Chapman, his veteran third baseman, in Tuesday's game with Toronto and intends playing him regularly thereafter in order to get him in condition as quickly as possible.

MESSENGER STARTS.

Andy Messenger, the right-hander who has seen no service in the games played thus far, will be the opening pitcher Tuesday. This is another test of condition, for Messenger, although winning 14 games last year, did not reach his peak.

Barron believes Messenger is in for a good year and wants a chance to look him over. Climax Blethen, the Cracker ace, and Chick Howard are slated to be the other pitchers Tuesday.

"I will rotate my pitchers until they all have had plenty of work, and we have enough games coming up to use them all," Barron pointed out.

Morris Bream, a new man from St. Paul, also will get a shot in one of the games. Bream is considered a good prospect, but is untried as yet.

Two players who have been on the hors du combat list will return to action this week. They are Johnny O'Connell, catcher, who has had a bad hand, and Johnny Morrison, pitcher, who has about recovered from an abscessed ear. O'Connell probably will catch Tuesday's game.

BUTLER, WILLIAMS.

Ralph Butler and Baxter Williams, receivers, have been doing most of the Cracker grabbing in four games played thus far. O'Connell has a reputation of being a good hitter and nice receiver.

It has been announced that Tuesday and Friday will be "Ladies' Day" at the ball park, the fair sex being admitted free of admission charge.

The Toronto-Cracker contests this week should be highly beneficial to both clubs, as Manager Daly, of the Leafs, has until March 27 to get his men in shape here.

"I am glad of the opportunity to play Barron's men, for we need the games, too," Daly said last night. The Leaf skipper has arranged a game with the Federal Prison nine for next Sunday. Daly has some exceptionally good hitters on his club and they will be a change for the Cracker pitchers, who have been serving them up to college and semi-pro batsmen.

Daly plans to use Frank Barnes and Art Mills, two of his best pitchers, Tuesday. Cantrell and Liebhart worked Saturday.

Hal Begin and Si Rosenthal will continue their fight for the first base position as Barron plans to alternate both men at the bag this week.

There will be no game today and the Crackers will practice at the regular hour of 12:30.

West End Golfers To Elect Officers

Election of officers will feature the annual meeting of the West End Golf Club at 8 o'clock Thursday night at the club on Donnelly avenue. Plans for a number of spring and summer tournaments for club members will also be discussed at the meeting.

The present officers are W. W. Burns, president; R. G. Lyon, vice president; C. C. Chamberlin, treasurer, and M. M. Anderson, secretary. The directors are A. F. Lively, J. R. Adamson, T. E. Tolleson, A. J. Cochran, A. W. Faulkinburg and Clyde Spinks. Johnny Adamson is chairman of the tournament committee. West End won the past two championships of the North Georgia Golf League and is favored to repeat during the 1932 season.

Dobbs Is Negotiating With Engel for Job

Dobbs was a visitor here today and yesterday and will return to his home in Chattanooga, where he will confer with Engel, Griffith said.

A's Chances Appear Better Than Cardinals' as Race Nears

YANKEES, GIANTS ARE NOMINATED AS CONTENDERS

World Champion St. Louis Club Unimpressive in Spring Work.

By Alan Gould,

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 20.—(AP)—Slightly more than three weeks in advance of the getaway for the major league baseball pennant races the prospects are that the Philadelphia Athletics will be better situated to win again than their world series conquerors, the St. Louis Cardinals.

In each case the New York Cubs, the Yankees and Giants, appear likely to be the strongest challengers, although the world has filtered back from the west coast to "watch the Chicago Cubs."

Both championship clubs have been performing in Florida under some handicap, minus outstanding regulars. This is especially true of the Cardinals. Not only have the world champions missed their two holdouts, Gelbert and Hafey, but the rest of the regulars have conditioned themselves slowly and the rookie pitchers, with the exception of "Tex" Carleton, have not made the experts forget that Burleigh Grimes is no longer a mainstay.

RECALLS 1929.

Still, St. Louis has looked no worse in spring training than the Athletics did in 1929, the year that the Mackmen found themselves and began their pennant-winning streak.

Connie Mack, at the close of that season, told me he was not in the least worried by what happened in the spring, because he knew his team was coming. He felt that its success was at least partially due to the fact that it started the season without much ballyhoo for its prospects.

Perhaps this precedent will cheer up Sam Breadon and Gabby Street. At least they have the satisfaction of realizing that their championship outfit can do no worse and probably will do a whole lot better as soon as its regular lineup is intact.

No one in the Cardinal camp underestimates the strength of the Giants and Cubs or, for that matter, the Brooklyn club. The Cards won more easily last season than has any National league winner in years, but they had some very good "breaks" in doing so. They won't, for example, find Cincinnati such "soft" picking this season as they have for the past two years, in addition to which it will be no benefit having Grimes pitching against them instead of for them.

PITCHING.

The chances of the Yankees to stop the A's hinges almost entirely on their pitching. Joe McCarthy's outfit has the wallop to average around seven or eight runs per game all season, but they won't get anywhere when the opposition tallies nine or ten.

Connie Mack admits he will be "much afraid" of the Yanks, if, as he is told, his rivals are strong enough to start a youngster like Otto Saltzgaver at second base instead of Lazzeri.

"I don't see how they leave out a hitter like Lazzeri," remarked Mack, "unless they have something rare."

The A's, meanwhile, have looked good in spite of the absence of two of their five aces, George Earnshaw and Al Simmons, training at Hot Springs, Ark. Al wrote Connie a letter this week saying he was in good condition and would be "ready when the season starts."

"Al is a great boy," beamed the veteran manager.

Grove and Walberg made their first appearances on the mound here yesterday and were hit briskly by the Boston Braves. Both were wild, but there is no reason to suspect that either has slipped or is about to.

SUCCESSFUL SWING DEPENDS ON USE OF PROPER MUSCLES

Copyright, 1932, by Central Press

Editor's Note: This is No. 2 of a series of golf lessons by Alex Morrison, golf's star teacher. These lessons appear in The Constitution sport pages twice a week. Watch for the next.

By Alex J. Morrison,
Golf's Foremost Technician

Now you may be "on" your game, but most of the time you're "off." You struggle along believing that inconsistent results are but a part of the game. They are not or need not be. Most of your ups and downs are caused simply by your failure to recognize the essentials of a successful swing.

A successful golf swing is one full, smooth, flowing motion without mental or physical interruption. Every golfer has experienced the "feel" of such a swing. Perhaps you have not enjoyed this sensation very often and certainly not as often as you would like. No doubt it is an elusive proposition and I'll tell you exactly why.

Everything that seems "perfectly natural" to you in swinging a golf club not only results in an improper muscular action but actually brings into use the wrong set of muscles. A successful swing can be made only when using the proper set of muscles. Unfortunately these are the muscles that you use least and have under the poorest control.

Your unfamiliarity with the use of the proper set of muscles in swinging a golf club accounts for your unsatisfactory or inconsistent results. You alone are not to blame, for all players and teachers also bring the proper set of muscles into play either by accident or through a long and tedious system of trial and error.

I will show you that the use of the proper set of muscles and the correct muscular action in the swing is positively natural and easy when properly approached.

The accompanying illustration shows the location of the muscles that must control the movement of the club if the swing is to be successful. These muscles must dominate the action of the swing, whether it be for a drive or a putt.

The confusion that would result from naming any or all of these muscles can be avoided since their action can be dealt with in a simple manner. That is by describing the positions and movements of the various parts of the body that afford the proper muscular action.

Georgia Golfers To Meet Rollins

ATHENS, Ga., March 20.—The Georgia golf team will open its 1932 season here next Wednesday afternoon against Rollins College, of Winter Park, Fla., at the Athens Country Club. Members of the Georgia squad are Carroll Latimer, Billy McWilliams, Morton Hodgson Jr., Nat Slaughter and Red Leathers. Murray Soule is coach of the team.

WYCOFF MATES TO SEE MATCH AT AUDITORIUM

Three Collegians To Appear on Tuesday's Wrestling Program.

Former teammates of Douglas Wycoff at Georgia Tech plan to be at the Auditorium ringside Tuesday night when the big fellow, now one of the promising young wrestlers, makes his debut here against Bill Middlekauff, one-time Florida star.

And Coach W. A. Alexander plans to be there to see if the big fellow can still tackle. Wycoff was the hardest tackler the south ever saw, according to the Georgia Tech coach.

It was this tackling ability which made him a star at backing up a line. And in addition to that he could, and did, pass, kick and run with the ball. He was also a great ball star and closed his career against Georgia with a home run that won the game.

GREAT ATHLETE.

Wycoff was one of the south's really great college athletes. He is going along in the wrestling game with the same speed and ability which made him a terror in college.

Wycoff trained for many months in New York and has been wrestling for some weeks with more than the ordinary success which comes to a young man in the game.

His opponent Tuesday night, Bill Middlekauff, played with Florida. He has appeared in Atlanta before and has a following here. Middlekauff has been wrestling for more than a year and is consequently more experienced. Wycoff's superior power, however, makes the bout about even.

This match will be the main event, going on with a two-hour time limit.

LUMPKIN BACK.

The semi-windup brings back Roy (Father) Lumpkin, also another great fullback at Tech and one of the best all-around defensive men the game ever had. He plays a star role with the Portsmouth (Ohio) football team each fall. Lumpkin has been winning consistently and each week has had a tougher foe. This week he meets Floyd Marshall, the huge Californian. Should Lumpkin win it he will be in line for a main-event match.

Tickets for the two matches are on sale at the Piedmont Hatters and at Davison-Paxon's. Ladies are admitted to any seat in the Auditorium for 75 cents.

Peachtree, T. N. T. To Play Tonight

Peachtree Christian and the T. N. T. class of the Baptist Tabernacle will meet at 7:30 o'clock tonight on the Calvary court for the right to meet Grace Methodist for the championship of the American league of the Sunday School Athletic Association basketball championship. Grace won the first half championship but lost to Peachtree Saturday night, 22 to 20, in a playoff for the second-half title.

LAST WEEK OF REVIVAL OPENED BY DR. PORTER

Christianity has given the world a new definition of the Deity in the text, "God Is Love," Dr. Henry Alford Porter told the congregation at Second Baptist church Sunday night in opening the final week of his evangelistic services on the "New Commandment."

The old Greek idea of God as beauty, the Roman idea of God as power and the Jewish idea of God as justice are all absorbed into a new and larger conception which Christianity completes with the final definition of God as love, the pastor asserted.

Preaching on "Another Chance" tonight, Dr. Porter will discuss the every-day meaning of this "new commandment" in the work of the church and of Christians, he said. He will preach each night this week at 7:45 o'clock, concluding his services Friday.

Killing Over Gaming Debt Disrupts Negro "Social"

The police were called to the Paradise Social club, a negro organization, at Edgewood avenue and Fort street, Sunday night shortly after 11 o'clock. There they found the body of Eddie Blake, 23, lying on the floor surrounded by a group of members of the club.

The officers were told that Blake and another member known only as Silly Willie had engaged in an argument regarding liquidation of gaming reparations and had elected to settle it with pistols.

Call Officers Moseley and Pittman said in their report that the secretary and steward of the club were unable to furnish any information about Silly Willie other than that he was pretty quick on the draw and that when he left he took Blake's pistol with him. The remainder of a social program at the club was called off because of the killing.

Tale of Two Pitchers.

"Why," asks a fanatic who seems to be warming up, "don't you give us a little more personal stuff about some of these rookies who may soon be stars?"

Well—there are two tall pitchers down south seeking jobs on National league ball teams that are of widely different types, both as regards personality and methods, and yet they both seem designed to make the grade. Each one is worth more than passing notice.

James O. (Tex) Carleton ought to come first because he has pitched twelve scoreless innings against the Athletics in exhibition games and looks to be one of the greatest finds in years. He blanked them six innings last spring and then took up this spring right where he left off, blanking them with ease three innings in each of the two games he has faced them. Tex also let Boston down with three hitless, scoreless innings.

Tex is 25 years old, stands 6 feet 1 1-2 inches high, and weighs 170 pounds. In appearance, pitching motion and personality he is not unlike Pete Donohue. They are both Texans and both were graduated from the Texas Christian College, and, by the way, they are fast friends.

Tex was coached by Pete and has followed his pitching style. He has the leverage in his gangling frame, is a deadly sharpshooter and is quick to change his delivery when under fire.

"When they are hitting you, why you have to do something about it or they will never stop," says Tex.

He uses a little of everything—change of pace, fast and slow ball, curve, hook, knuckle ball and screw ball, and, he also uses his head.

"When they're hitting your stuff you have to use your head or get right out of there," drawled Tex.

The Other Rookie.

The other one, Van Lingle Mungo, recalled from Hartford late last summer by the Brooklyn club, is an inch taller than Tex and weighs about 25 pounds more. He is as strong as Samson and depends on a fast ball—a ball that is as fast as a bullet.

Mungo won 15 and lost 5 for Hartford last year, and then won 3 and lost 1 for Brooklyn. He is the pride of Carey's heart this spring. The Brooklyn manager compares him to Walter Johnson and declares he will use him as a regular this year in spite of his age.

Mungo is only 20 years old. He has Holland Dutch blood in his veins, as his name would indicate, and he also has a few drops of Choctaw in the family strain, so he comes naturally by his coolness and phlegmatic bearing on the slab while under fire.

But the best Mungo story concerns the father rather than the son. The elder Mungo, be it understood, was also a ball player of parts in the old days. He once pitched in what was the original Sally league and even had an offer to sign with the Boston Braves.

DEFOREST IS AGAIN TRAINING GODWIN

Washington paper, Godwin finished Lawson, erstwhile Virginia ring favorite, as a main-go performer. The paper declared "Godwin has caught the fancy of Portner arena patrons. His performance against Red Barry last week was masterful and he more than fulfilled expectations against Lawson."

Recently Godwin gave Professor Maxie Rosenbloom, the have-a-good-time pugilist, one of his hardest fights. It was one of the best fights ever held in Florida and ended in a draw after 10 furious rounds of battling.

RATED FOURTH.

Professor Maxie, one of the original happiness boys, is the acknowledged light-heavy champion in most parts.

Both The Ring and Collyer's Eye this month rate Godwin fourth among the light-heavyweights of the nation. The last rankings of the N. B. A. placed hhim eighth.

Jimmy Johnson, promoter of Madison Square Garden, has promised Godwin a main bout within the next three weeks, according to Arthur Godwin, who was returning from New York, as he passed through here. Bob's only other main bout in the Garden resulted in a 10-round decision over Arthur Huttick on July 6.

MEET CALLED.

All baseball managers as well as basketball managers of S. S. A. A. teams are asked to attend a meeting at the Atlanta Athletic Club Wednesday night at 7:30. The affairs of the basketball season will be finished at this time, and the organization of a baseball league will be undertaken.

point, he was leading Reveille Boy by three lengths.

Midway in the stretch, Reveille Boy increased his speed and for a moment it seemed that Phar Lap might go down to defeat. The horses at that point were but heads apart. But Elliott gave the word and Phar Lap playfully moved away, winning easily.

Reveille Boy, former American Derby winner, owned by J. A. Best, trailed his field for half the distance, then moved up fast and was easily second best. He was ridden by Jockey R. Wholey.

Scimitar, belonging to J. D. Mikel, with G. Smith up, also came up from the rear and was an easy third.

Fourth money went to Joe Flores, owned by S. H. Lee.

Odds on Phar Lap were 2 to 1, on Reveille Boy 3 to 1, on Scimitar 10 to 1, and on Joe Flores 5 to 1.

Eleven horses started the race. Following Joe Flores, they finished as follows: Marine, Good and Hot, Seth's Hope, Spanish Play, Dr. Freeland, Bahamas and Cabezo.

The victory was a popular one, as Phar Lap was a well-played favorite, paying $5 for a $2 mutuel ticket. When Phar Lap returned to the winner's circle, the crowd rushed onto the track and cheered the invader for several minutes.

GEORGIA WORKS FOR CONTEST WITH CLEMSON

Bulldog Nine Opens Season Against Tigers on Thursday.

ATHENS, Ga., March 20.—Georgia's baseball Bulldogs who will open their season against Clemson in Clemson next Thursday afternoon, finished their third week of practice by defeating an aggregation of Athens All-Stars, 6 to 0, in a practice game at Sanford field.

Sixteen Bulldogs took part in the practice game, as Coach Bill White shifted his men in an effort to find the right combination to send into action against Clemson this week. Jimmy Nicholson and Spurgeon Chandler, who were two of the regular hurlers last spring, divided the pitching duties between them. The All-Star aggregation was able to get few hits off the two Bulldog pitchers. Leroy Young, veteran catcher, and Abe Cooper divided the backstop duties.

Bill White has a job when it comes to choosing his infield from the 10 youngsters who took part in the game. Ray Fleming and Bobby Rose are fighting for first base. Fleming, a regular in 1931, having a slight edge. Hut Parks, Flip Costa and Stokely Pound are aspirants for second base assignments, while little Homer Key seems to have shortstop all sewed up in a bag and packed away.

The outfield problem is not quite so hard. Buster Mott, of course, will play center field with Marion Gaston, who can really pound out those extra base blows, the probable choice for right field. Both played those positions last spring. Jiggs McClure and Buck Chasteen are trying for the left field position. "Catfish" Smith, who has become a pitcher, will play in the outfield on some of the days he isn't pitching.

Rickey Anderson, Lefty Simpson, Kenny Hamilton, Joe Costa and Lloyd Gilmore are some of the pitchers who come down every afternoon to try out for the mound positions. All save Gilmore are letter men.

The practice today will probably be the last real one for the Bulldogs before they entrain for Clemson. Term examinations begin today and the boys will be busy through next Wednesday.

Fire Insurance FACTS
"Hotter'n Blazes"
BY WOOD BURNS

The city of Upton found itself facing the problem of balancing its budget. The fellows in charge of the city's affairs didn't want to make anybody sore by cutting salaries—but something had to be done. They couldn't go on like this—making obligations with no prospects of paying. So—

They took a chance and cut salaries 10% (and what a howl went up from the employees!) They also cut off several trucks and fired a few guys that wasn't doing much anyway.

Then, a committee looking over the books for more things to cut off happened to spy the words "Fire insurance." "Now, here's just where we'll save plenty o' jack," they thought.

The upshot was an appreciable reduction in fire insurance on first one thing and another until the protection against fire on the city's properties was almost negligible.

Things went along o. k. for a spell, and then the unexpected happened.

One o' the supposed "Fireproof" school buildings blazed up on a Sunday morning bright and early—and to help matters along a forty-mile gale was blowing.

To the sad disappointment of the "City Fathers" the insurance lopped off this building to "cut expenses" had proved a terrible mistake—and the taxpayers had to pay the bill.

It is poor economy for anyone to cut below the "safety line" when considering fire insurance.

And don't forget: "VALUE IN INSURANCE LIES IN THE INTEGRITY AND KNOWLEDGE OF YOUR AGENT."

Methodist Women's Conference Lauded by 'Uncle Jabe' Gilead

BY DR. THOMAS M. ELLIOTT.

Atlanta again has endeared herself in royally entertaining another great gathering of church people. This time it was a group of more than 300 Methodist women who assembled here from all the states of the Southern Methodist connection, as well as from nearly a dozen foreign countries. In addition to the 300 accredited delegates, there were at least a thousand visitors in attendance during the six-day period.

Members of the Woman's Missionary Council of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, attending the 22d annual session of the council body, said this session surpassed any heretofore held, both in attendance and enthusiasm, and they were profuse in their expressions of appreciation of the entertainment afforded by the south's Gate City.

The council meeting was strictly a woman's affair, and persons of the masculine persuasion were few and far between. The very few men to be seen at the meeting seemed to feel that they were in the wrong pew. It surely was a woman's meeting, and it was a great success in every way.

However, one representative of the stronger sex was on hand, and he was so impressed with the woman's meeting that he never tires of talking about it. Our good friend, Uncle Jabesh Gilead, of the Rural district, was at the meeting, representing the Red Church in the Piney Woods, of the Sky Line circuit. "Uncle Jabe," as he is known to all Georgia, delights in attending big church meetings, and he scarcely ever lets one pass. When he learned that his pastor, the Rev. Silas Goodman, would not attend this meeting, and that none of the women of the Live and Learn Missionary Society at the Red Church in the Piney Woods would be present, he proposed to come himself.

This writer was interested in observing Uncle Jabesh, and noting his keen interest in all the deliberations. Finally, we asked Uncle Jabe to had for a long interview. The old man was free to talk and express his ideas and convictions.

"I'll tell you, son," said "Uncle Jabe," "this Woman's Missionary Council is the biggest thing I ever saw, and there's nothing else like it. You've got to hand it to these sisters.

JABESH GILEAD.

Don't tell me these women don't know how to manage their affairs. They had a great meeting, and I felt like I was in a good revival all the time. The weather outside was cold and windy, but when I got in the church house I got warmed up and filled with joy in my heart.

"You know, I've been going to annual conferences a long time. This woman's meeting was a mighty different affair. One thing was there wasn't a bunch of presiding elders on hand juggling with preachers and laymen about this and that. There were no laymen rambling around the premises. And there wasn't anybody trying to lunch, so that opportunity might be impress his importance on somebody else. Boy, I felt relieved to observe that there was no politicking going on, every fellow trying to get some kind of appointment. Then we didn't have to listen to a lot of preachers telling about how they had raised money to put a new gate on the front yard fence, or give an ice cream festival to get money to buy a new carpet to put on the pulpit floor. All the voice we heard at the council meeting were strictly soprano, and no foolishness.

Attend to Business.

"Another thing, son, that struck me was this: You didn't see a gang of women hanging around the front of the church smoking cigars and laughing and talking. Boy, when they went to that church house out at St. Mark church, they hot-footed it right on into the building, and kept quiet when they got in there. Why, sometimes, the house would be nearly full when they announced the opening song at 9 o'clock each morning. Those women were there for business, and that's no joke.

"And did they attend to business? I never saw the beat of it. Mrs. J. W. Perry, of Nashville, was the president, and I never saw a better chairman anywhere. She had things running as smooth as velvet, and everything was exactly on schedule time. The women had held their committee meetings beforehand, and all their reports and resolutions were ready right to the dot. They transacted lots of business, and big business, too, without any confusion or delay. Nobody appealed from the chair's decision, and everybody had opportunity to have his say."

We asked "Uncle Jabe" as to his impression regarding the most outand everything so grand, it's hard to say right off. But, you know, I couldn't help being impressed with the optimistic and courageous spirit those women showed. Their collections for the year had fallen short some $50,000; but they didn't grouch standing feature of the council meeting.

"Now, about that, son, I don't hardly know. You see there was so much about that. They just said, 'We'll thank God and take courage, and carry on.' So, when they came to making their pledges for another year, they just walked right up and gave their promissory notes, or pledges, for $980,004 to continue their work, and never batted an eye. They're certainly a brave crowd. They tightened up their belts 6 per cent on operating budgets, and said to the balance of the world, 'Come on, let's go.' Old Man Depression's got a job on his hands when he tries to down a bunch of women like that.

Frank in Opinions.

"And those sisters didn't mind telling the world just exactly what they thought and how they felt about matters. They wanted it known that they are opposed to liquor. So they up and said so and sent Mr. Hoover word to that effect and told the whole world they are in favor of the eighteenth amendment and are opposed to anybody tampering with it. They want this war business stopped. So they sent word to Geneva and told 'em 'Attaboy.'

"And those women think the Southern Methodist church ain't giving 'em a square deal in denying 'em a larger share in the management of the church's business. And they told the world how they feel about it. They had meetings about the matter. They said the church has great boards to manage its affairs, with 300 members on those boards. Of the 300 members only 30 of them are women and they occupy only minor positions. These women said they want greater recognition and a larger share in the work of promoting the kingdom of God. Some of 'em want to preach and they propose to ask the general conference to give 'em the right to preach, when they feel called, and have the gifts, graces, gumption and grit to measure up to the requirements. So they appointed a big committee to agitate this matter for the next two years before general conference meets, and to formulate a petition to that lawmaking conference that women be given clergy rights. And you can mark my word for it, son, they'll get it, too. All they way along the women have had to fight for what they got. They'll fight for this and get it, too.

"I don't see why the church is so slow recognizing the women. Women were the last at the cross when the Savior was crucified and they were the first at the sepulcher when He rose that Easter morning. And it seems to me that women have been right up near the front in all the good works done since then. Yes, we may have a woman bishop and women presiding elders some o' these days. That would not be any greater risk than we have taken at times when some men have been made bishops and elders."

We asked "Uncle Jabe" if he thought the womenfolk could show any real evidences of service to the church and the world. In other words, is it all worth while? The old man was somewhat indignant at the inquiry.

75,000 Women in Work.

"Is it worth while? Are there any fruits? Son, where are your eyes? What do you use your head for besides keeping your ears separated? Just look and think what those women have done. By their sacrifices, many a time, the work of the church has been saved. This missionary council has more than 7,000 auxiliary societies throughout the south, and that means that some 75,000 women are serving as leaders in their communities. These women are engaged in teaching 100,000 children and young folks the forward ideas and impressing the duty to serve God and man. Think of that! For 50 years they have been carrying on, growing, becoming stronger, until now the sun never ceases to shine on their labors. You let 300,000 women be united in their ideas and efforts about any one things, with their prayers, their tears, and their sacrifices, and there is bound to be tremendous results coming from their efforts. So, all over the world today the influence of women like these is being felt. At home and abroad, in big things as well as small, the women are working and we can't get along without them. More power to 'em is my sentiment."

We asked "Uncle Jabe" which service during the council meeting pleased him most.

"Now, about that, I'll just say the greatest show in Atlanta on Monday night, March 14, was that meeting down at Wesley Memorial church that night, when 32 white-robed young women were consecrated to mission work. Son, that was the grandest thing happening in Atlanta that night. Politics and movies were not in a million miles of that. Those young women all dressed in white looked like the white-robed angel band I used to hear my mother sing about. And, as they came marching in, singing 'Lead On, O King, Eternal,' I thought I was at the pearly gates. Then, after Bishop Moore had consecrated them, and they sang 'O Master, Let Me Walk With Thee,' it seemed like it was about time for Gabriel to sound the trumpet.

"Not All Going Wrong."

"That consecration service was worth a billion dollars to me. It just goes to show that not all our young folks are going to the devil, and that many of them have higher ideals of life than bridge playing, petting, gin-drinking and dancing some kind of bunny-hug or hootchy-kootchy. Yes, sir, I'm for our young folks. God bless 'em. They need help and encouragement. I believe they are doing mighty well considering the kind of patterns we older folks have been setting them. Anyhow, the young folks are ours, and they are just what we've raised 'em up to be."

As a final word, "Uncle Jabe" wanted to tell us what he thought of Atlanta's hospitality.

"Son, just tell those Atlanta people they certainly did themselves proud the way they entertained the council meeting. Three hundred delegates from other states are now singing Atlanta's praise. They said absolutely nothing had been left undone for their comfort and pleasure. Hundreds of instances of personal thoughtfulness impressed them, and the many efforts to make the session a success, as made by Atlanta folks, made deep impressions on the hearts of all. And, you know, next year lots of these same women are coming back to Georgia, when the general council of the board of missions holds its annual meeting at Augusta, and the 50th anniversary of Payne College is celebrated. God bless the women, is my sentiment; and I hope to meet with 'em in Augusta next year."

Foster Fund Reaches $333; Bandit's Pistol Is Identified

The pistol which killed Detective Frank C. (Red) Foster as he frustrated a holdup last Wednesday night was stolen in a holdup two weeks before the gun battle which proved fatal to the detective and his slayer, Harold White, 16, negro, and caused the roundup of a gang of young negro bandits who have been linked in a number of previous robberies.

Identification of the pistol used by White in the Foster slaying was made Sunday by B. H. Mayo, Edgewood avenue businessman, who told the police it was taken from him by White and another negro when they held him up on the night of March 2.

Meanwhile, the Courage Fund, launched by The Constitution and Rogers, Inc., to assist the widow and fatherless children of the slain detective, reached $333.50 with the reporting of $17.50 in contributions Sunday.

Mayo was one of a number of victims of recent holdups who viewed the body of White and looked over his three alleged companions in the police "showup" Sunday. He identified White and Richard Morris as the two negroes who robbed him.

C. S. Kern, Inman Park druggist, also identified White as a bandit Sunday. Kern said that the young negro and another negro held him up in his store on the night of March 12 and took $100 from him.

J. R. Jackson, proprietor of a drugstore at Highland avenue and Glen Iris drive, identified White and Morris as the two negroes who held him up on the night Foster was slain, a few minutes before the robbery of the delicatessen was attempted.

Detectives and investigators for the solicitor-general who have been working up the cases against White's three alleged companions on the night of the slaying, said they expected to be ready to lay their evidence before the grand jury Tuesday.

MISSISSIPPI TO STUDY REORGANIZATION, TAXE

JACKSON, Miss., March 20.—(AP)—Proposed reorganization and consolidation of state departments will share the spotlight with the sales tax controversy in the legislature this week as the assembly swings into its twelfth week of the 1932 session.

Under authority of a concurrent resolution adopted in both chambers, Lieutenant Governor Dennis Murphree will name 10 senators and Speaker Tom Bailey will name 15 representatives to serve on the committee of 25, which will be charged with making a complete survey of state governmental functions with a view of shaping bills to effect economies through eliminations, consolidations and reorganizations.

Numerous departmental changes have already been proposed in the legislature in individual bills, among them the measure already approved by both house and senate to abolish the office of superintendent of the penitentiary, now held by J. W. Williamson, Bilbo appointee. The house, however, has declined to concur in a senate amendment to make a $1,500 adjustment in Williamson's present salary and the bill is in conference.

Another major change has been recommenced in the house by the committee investigating the state bank department, the committee asking an "immediate change" in the method of selecting the state bank superintendent. J. S. Love is the present superintendent, by appointment of the State Bankers' Association.

The school's alumni will be special guests. Interesting and instructive talks will be a part of the entertainment, the speakers to be announced later.

The Rabun Gap-Nacoochee is a Christian school providing opportunities for self-help and vocational training, merging cultural studies and daily manual labor. In its three-part plan for boarding pupils, day pupils, and whole families, the total enrollment is 450 persons, as announced in a recent report. Work is made just as much a part of the plan of education as books in the school. Training in habits of industry has an equal place with study of literary subjects.

In its literary and industrial training, Rabun Gap-Nacoochee is like other well-known mountain schools, but, in addition, it has its farm-school plan. On the 1,500-acre campus are 20 farm homes. These are occupied by young parents with large families of small children. The whole farm "is a school" in which parents and children are taught modern methods in the growing of crops and gardens and in the care of the home and poultry and animals. This is a revolving system for at the end of each five years this trained family moves and another family moves in to be trained.

Dr. Frank A. Rexford, who was sent by the Carnegie Corporation, of New York, to visit southern mountain schools, says that the Nacoochee farm family plan is sound and is the most forward-looking educational movement I have seen anywhere, south or north." Again he wrote: "At Rabun Gap I found some rare and beautiful things which I am heartily anxious to see succeed." Rabun Gap-Nacoochee Guild is anxious that the public may know the school better and become one of its interested friends.

Miss Massey Talks To Dolly Madison

Dolly Madison Society, Children of the American Revolution, met Friday at Craigie House and Miss Katharine Massey gave a talk, "My Personal Recollections of a Visit to Washington and Mount Vernon." One of the features at Mount Vernon which impressed Miss Massey most vividly was the key to the bastile, brought to this country by LaFayette and presented to George Washington. At the beginning of the French Revolution this place of horror, the bastile, was torn down and the key given to LaFayette.

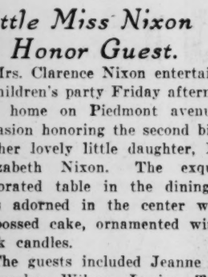

In speaking of the horrors of that day in France she stated this country "didn't know what trouble was;" that never in this nation had citizens been thrown into prison, and especially a dungeon, without having committed a crime and without enjoying the privilege of a fair trial by jury. In Washington the feature which was outstanding in her mind was Washington Monument, about 550 feet high, and literally lined inside with tablets from multitudinous organizations and schools.

Miss Mary Virginia McConnell gave a piano solo, and invitation was extended the society by Carol Hitchcock George and Miss Margaret George to hold its May meeting at their home at Vinings, Ga., followed by a picnic.

At the April meeting the new officers of the society will be elected and installed; also the delegate appointed to the national convention in Washington.

FRIENDLY COUNSEL

BY CAROLINE CHATFIELD

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

My husband is the best, most thoughtful and honest man in the world. We would be perfectly happy but for one thing. He is one that can't say "no" to anybody. He lets people get in debt to him and I have to save and make up the deficit. He borrows money to farm and operate his business with, loses money on the tenants, and then berrows again to keep things going. This means the tenants are getting what rightfully belongs to his family. Sometimes I think I should just go ahead and get what I want for if I don't get the money somebody else will. I have tried talk but it does no good. Maybe I should never mention the subject to him.

DISCOURAGED.

ANSWER:

It is rather surprising to note how much of the old belief lives and thrives, the belief that a husband has a right to dispense his money as he pleases, without reference to his wife, who is, or should be, his partner in money matters, as in all others. Such a problem as you face may be ascribed to that cause or it may possibly be ascribed to another; an inherent weakness in the man's character which dealing with money discloses. If there is any weakness in a man's character his dealing with money is apt to disclose it. If he is dishonest, he finds the dollar to be the best medium with which to practice his dishonesty. If he is selfish and stingy, his handling of money will betray the ugly fact. If he has no sense of responsibility, the way he dispenses his cash will illustrate it. If he is more optimistic than circumstances warrant, his use of his money will prove it.

In either case a few threats, made with your fingers crossed behind your back, might help you. Nagging won't get you anything, neither will ignoring the bad habit get you anything. I suggest that you say to your husband that you feel very keenly the injustice that his present policy works on you and that you feel the right to demand a different one. Namely, that he tell the would-be borrowers that what he has is half yours and that he has no right to make loans without your approval. Then when the propositions are submitted for your approval, you will have the right of veto, which you may exercise. That would eliminate his embarrassment at refusal to lend money and also insure you against the losses of such loans.

Then you may go even further (here is where you should cross your fingers) and tell him that since the money all goes anyhow and you have been denying yourself all these years and never getting what you want and need, you have decided that you will take what is your rightful share, letting the bills fall on his head. Such a prospect might stiffen his backbone temporarily.

Culbertson on Contract

Distribution's Little Joke.

BY ELY CULBERTSON.

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

If Mr. George Roberts, of Walla Walla, Wash., has a wholesome regard for the perils of adverse distribution, he cannot greatly be blamed after his remarkable experience, in which he felt the full force of her frowns.

The story as it came to me was that Mr. Roberts had been fighting a losing rubber. He and his partner had won the first game, but after that had not been favored in the distribution of the cards, and their opponents had made a Small Slam as well as collected several penalty swings, due to their efforts to defend the game. It seemed that fate was about to smile when Mr. Roberts, as Dealer, picked up the hand pictured below:

Spades	A K Q J 10 8
Hearts	A K Q
Diamonds	A K Q
Clubs	2

Throwing the Approach principle to the winds, Mr. Roberts bid six spades and began mentally the work of seeing how nearly this contract, which appeared a certainty, would balance the scores made by his opponents. A vulnerable Small Slam was worth 750 points, the rubber bonus was 500, and the value of the spade honors was 150 points, to say nothing of 180 points for the score below the line. This total of 1,580 points was great enough to turn the losing rubber into a winning one.

The complete hands were:

South—Dealer.

Both sides vulnerable.

	♠ 9 ♡ 8 6 5 4 2 ◇ 10 8 4 3 2 ♣ K 10
♠ 7 4 2 ♡ J 10 9 7 3 ◇ — ♣ A 9 8 4 3	W N E S	♠ 6 5 3 ♡ — ◇ J 9 7 6 5 ♣ Q J 7 6 5
	♠ A K Q J 10 8 ♡ A K Q ◇ A K Q ♣ 2

West was one of those players who believe in doubling "on general principles," so he quickly doubled Mr. Roberts' Small Slam bid. North and East passed and Mr. Roberts, feeling that fate at last was kind, redoubled.

West opened a heart and everything appeared satisfactory until East trumped and returned a diamond. This West trumped, and East and West established a cross-ruff, which gave them six tricks, Mr. Roberts meanwhile helplessly playing his beautiful honors to see them fall prey to "worthless" trumps. They then cashed the Ace of clubs and called it a day. The score was thus a penalty of six tricks redoubled, totaling 4,400 points less 150 for the honors held in spades.

I have rarely heard and have never seen in actual play a more vivid illustration of the invisible dangers in distribution. While South should have opened his hand with a Forcing bid of two spades, the result, provided a heart is opened and a diamond returned, is inevitable. West's Double was of course, particularly bad, as West could have no way of knowing that his partner was void of hearts as he was void of diamonds, nor was he even sure that the Ace of clubs would take a trick.

TODAY'S POINTER.

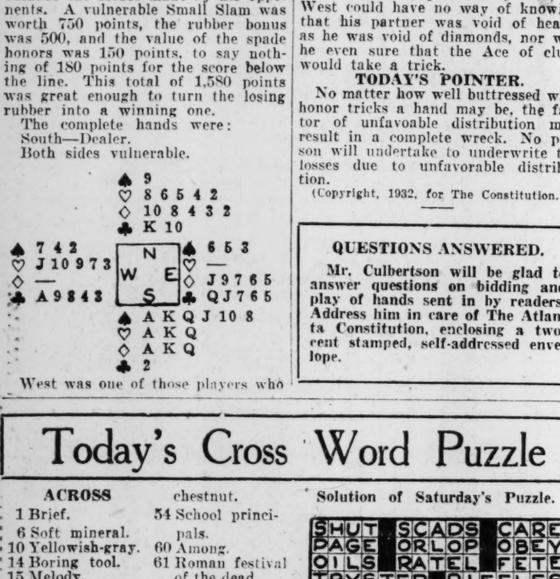

No matter how well buttressed with honor tricks a hand may be, the factor of unfavoable distribution may result in a complete wreck. No person will undertake to underwrite the losses due to unfavorable distribution.

Burgess Children's Stories

A BRAVE LITTLE MOTHER.

By Thornton W. Burgess.

There is no courage like the courage of love. It forgets self wholly. It dares all things for precious loved ones. It will make any sacrifice, even life itself. Not even the understanding sympathy of Farmer Brown's Boy could really know how great was the courage of little Mrs. Whitefoot the Wood Mouse when she entered the little sugar house and went to her babies in their bed in the hollow stick lying almost at his feet.

Farmer Brown's Boy suddenly remembered the fire and its need of wood. He stooped to pick up the hollow stick to put it aside out of the way. Not until his hand touched it did little Mrs. Whitefoot come out of it and then she ran but a little way before stopping to turn and watch him. He put the stick where there would be no chance that it would be picked up by mistake, and no sooner did he step back than Mrs. Whitefoot was back and had popped into that little hole.

Having attended to the fire and done such other duties as needed attention Farmer Brown's Boy once more picked up the stick wherein was that little home. As before Mrs. Whitefoot ran out. Farmer Brown's Boy sat down cross-legged on the floor with the stick in his lap. He wanted to see just how brave little Mrs. Whitefoot was.

Little Mrs. Whitefoot timidly approached one knee and for a long time she hesitated. Then she jumped up on it and almost at once jumped down again in a panic. Once more she mustered up courage and jumped up on his knee. There she paused and looked up in his face with such a searching look, as if trying to read his intentions, that he wished with all his heart that he could talk to her and make her understand that she and her babies were perfectly safe. After a long look she began to move forward a few steps at a time until she could no longer stand the suspense of not knowing if anything had happened to her babies, and darted in through the hole.

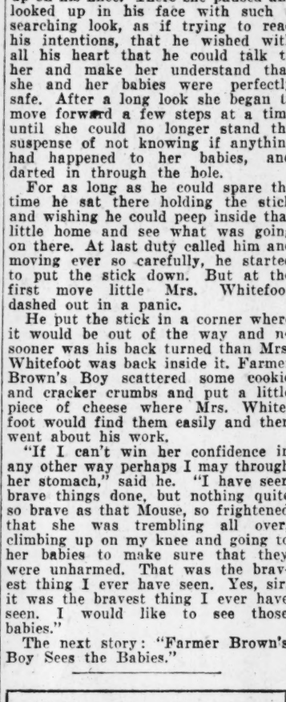

For as long as he could spare the time he sat there holding the stick and wishing he could peep inside that little home and see what was going on there. At last duty called him and moving ever so carefully, he started to put the stick down. But at the first move little Mrs. Whitefoot dashed out in a panic.

He put the stick in a corner where it would be out of the way and no sooner was his back turned than Mrs. Whitefoot was back inside it. Farmer Brown's Boy scattered some cookie and cracker crumbs and put a little piece of cheese where Mrs. Whitefoot would find them easily and then went about his work.

"If I can't win her confidence in any other way perhaps I may through her stomach," said he. "I have seen brave things done, but nothing quite so brave as that Mouse, so frightened that she was trembling all over, climbing up on my knee and going to her babies to make sure that they were unharmed. That was the bravest thing I ever have seen. Yes, sir, it was the bravest thing I ever have seen. I would like to see those babies."

U. S. Disciple of Gandhi 'Pollutes' Indian Temple

BOMBAY, India, March 20.—(UP)—An American woman who has adopted native dress and customs because of her admiration for the Mahatma Gandhi, nationalist leader, caused a small riot and much trouble today at the Hindu temple of Dwarka.

The woman, Nila Cram Cook, who has been known as Mela Naghini Devi (the blue serpent goddess) since she became a disciple of Gandhi, donned her native costume and went to the temple to worship.

The other worshippers were startled and the priests forced her to leave, declaring the temple had been polluted. The other worshippers left immediately and services were suspended.

It will require 24 hours to purify the temple the priests said. The ceremony costs $75.

On the Air Today

The Constitution's news broadcast tonight will be a special feature given by the sports department with Ralph McGill, sports editor, and Jimmy Jones giving the latest general and sports news of the day. Since Ralph and Jimmy took the air more than two months ago they have built a large audience of sports fans and others who look forward to the Monday night broadcast at 10:30 o'clock.

Always on the lookout for something new and entertaining, Ralph McGill secured the services of Baxter Williams, candidate for a place on the Atlanta baseball team as catcher, to sing two vocal numbers. Williams is a singer of much promise and those who tune in on WGST at 10:30 for the broadcast will hear something different.

Another "different" program will be the concert by "The Ghost of the Piano" at 4:45 o'clock, a number recently added to WGST, which has become one of the most popular programs on the air. No person knows who the ghost might be, and no clue to his identity is given. But, boy, how he can play a piano!—only a ghost could do it.

Authentic Bohemian and Austrian music played by the Budapest Gipsy ensemble under the direction of Alexander Haas will be heard through the WABC-Columbia network from 10 to 10:30 o'clock every Monday night, beginning tonight.

Born in Budapest, and a graduate of the university and conservatory of music there, Haas attained prominence as an orchestra leader in Vienna, when it was the gay capital of the Austro-Hungarian empire. His success there was so great that within a short time he made tours all over Europe, being acclaimed equally for his renderings of Hungarian folk-music and the polished melodies of the Viennese.

DEMOCRATIC FUND RECEIVES $58,114 SINCE MARCH 1

NEW YORK, March 20.—(AP)—The democratic victory fund has received $58,114 in gifts and pledges from 22,866 individuals since March 1, John W. Davis, chairman, announced today. An average of 1,345 men and women now are contributing $3,418 daily, he said.

"With more than 20,000 volunteer workers now concentrating activity on raising a substantial part of the $1,500,000 victory fund by Jefferson's birthday, when the national democratic rally will be held in Washington, the party's preparedness campaign is gaining momentum daily," said Mr. Davis.

"The figures for March indicate the growing appreciation on the part of democrats everywhere that provision of the funds for continuance and expansion of the constructive educational and organization work of the democratic national committee prior to the actual presidential campaign, is the first step toward assurance of a sweeping party victory, nationally and locally, in November."

LOCAL PHILHARMONIC DIRECTORS TO MEET

Kriegshaber, president, on Sunday stated that several matters of importance were to be taken up, including plans for a recital to be given at Wesley Memorial auditorium on Sunday afternoon, April 3.

Joan Bennett's Frocks Feature Newest Opus

Joan Bennett's first 1932 picture is just another warmed-over tale of the poor working girl who wanted to be rich—an ambition likely nourished at one time or another by all the p. w. girls from India's coral strands to whatever it is the poet sang about in Iceland.

And, as all the other p. w. girls who have been targets for this sort of scorched melodrama have done since the time of Lucretia, the one in "She Wanted a Millionaire" succeeds. Furthermore, in this particular Hollywood factory the p. w. girl loved a p. w. boy.

Feminine patrons of the Fox will find something to help them forget the overworked theme in looking at the dresses Miss Bennett wears—20 different ones.

I almost forgot—the girl started work in a textile factory and won a beauty contest.

However, and it is a pleasure to testify, any shortage of entertainment, optical or otherwise, in the picture is abundantly made up on the stage. It is the Fanchon and Marco "Modern Minstrels" idea, preserving enough of the Al Fields' flavor—mostly in burnt cork, though—for old-timers to reminisce about the gags of end men in the gay nineties. There are three clog dancers that haven't been surpassed since the old dog was a puppy.

White-Light Lovelies Cavort in Keith's Film

Bright lines and the light-hearted deportment of the folks before the camera go a long way toward covering some extensive holes in the plot of "The Greeks Had a Word for Them," current feature at Keith's.

Indeed, so sprightly are the antics and chatter of the gold-digging triumvirate about whom the affair is built that at times one quite forgets that Zoe Akins is a wisecracker and not a playwright.

In other words this zippy chronicle of the doings of the white light Loreleis is mighty good entertainment for all its lack of logic and faulty dramaturgy. These goings-on in which cash and sentiment, sense and nonsense, are so inextricably mixed up, are as amusing as they are unconvincing.

It would be sentimentally fitting if we could record that the last of a long series of vaudeville programs at the Georgia is a great one. But it would be a distinct departure from the truth if we did.

Owen McGiveney's protean feat in presenting a one-act melodrama in which he plays all the parts and a comique's burlesque thereof are the high points and quite enjoyable if things in that line appeal to you.

—LEWIS HAWKINS.

Ann Harding Is Star Of Picture at Rialto

"Prestige," a dramatic story of a French military officer in his fight to uphold the prestige of the white race and at the same time fight the insidious environment of a command in a penal colony in Indo-China, is Ann Harding's latest, and it comes to us at the Rialto this week.

It is interesting to know that this is the picture which was filmed in Florida, where Ann Harding was en route when she was taken ill in Atlanta. It is a very tense drama and Miss Harding does an excellent bit of acting. She is ably supported by Adolphe Menjou, as the rather charming villain, and Melvyn Douglas, as the officer-husband who finds himself, gains a new understanding, and renews his pride and prestige through quelling a mutiny by sheer spiritual force. The picture is excellent.

As for the short subjects, the newsreel and animated cartoon, they are good, as always, with the comedy deserving a little more than just passing comment. It is another of the Peter Burke news-reporter series and is called "Extra! Extra!" and will provide many a laugh for an audience. But don't get the idea that all newspaper reporters are classic soaks.

—RILEY McKOY.

CHAPTER IV.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE: When Judy Allison had been in Chicago for six months without finding work her father wired her to return to her small-town home. Downcast by her failure, she went to the tea room in her rooming house. Dick Mason, chief radio announcer at WAOA, sat at her table. Impulsively Judy showed Dick her father's telegram. Following Dick's insistence, she reported for a radio tryout the following morning. From all the applicants, she was chosen.

Dick laughed at her. He was tall, and he had a dimple, just as she had remembered. He had brown hair, very smooth. She hadn't noticed it before, but he was handsome. She heard Dick Mason say, "That was just the regular stuff. They liked your voice the minute they heard you. So you start Monday. Forty a week, three mornings a week. And that's not all. They're going to use your real name, Judy. Miss Judy Allison. The Beauty Builder! Think of that!"

Still breathless, still unbelieving, Judy followed Dick along the hall.

They sat a long time over coffee and toast and marmalade, and in that time Judy learned a great deal about Dick Mason.

That he was 26, which seemed very old indeed; for Judy was "just past" 20. That he earned $85 a week for "just talking." That he had been an announcer for two years. That he started out to be an actor—"but I was a rotten actor;" that, really, he finished college with the intention of being an engineer—"but I couldn't make a single column of figures come out straight;" that he thought radio announcers were funny.

"Very, very, very funny," he said seriously. "Taking themselves seriously. Dressing up in dinner coats at 5:45 sharp—just to talk into a mike. Growing their hair long and getting arty and saying 'r' for an hour at a time—Oh!"

He pointed.

"Amos 'n' Andy," Dick said. "First time I've seen them here in months."

"Amos 'n' Andy."

Judy looked for a couple of men in blackface. She saw, instead, two smooth-faced, casual, well-dressed gentlemen, taking their time about ordering, plunging suddenly into close conversation. They weren't laughing. Whatever they were saying, it was plain that neither was being funny.

"I thought—I mean—"

"I know." Dick Mason chuckled. A very nice chuckle, Judy thought. "Funny, the ideas you get about radio people—just hearing them. Why, there's a nice lady in Canada who sends me neckties and pyjamas just because my voice sounds like her son's voice.

The girl with the wildly tinted hair and the shabby imitation seal coat, Dick said, earned $500 a week; "she puts it all in the bank; she was almost starving until radio came along, trying to be a singer; she wasn't good in a concert hall or on the stage, but on the air her voice vibrations are just right and all the fans think she's marvelous; radio's like that." The others—

"Hello, Dick!"

Judy jumped. She'd been so interested in Dick Mason, listening to the smooth, regular procession of words, she had forgotten that anybody else might talk, might come to the table that already she thought of as hers and Dick's.

"Hello, Elton."

Dick said it rather slowly, not quite happily.

"Introduce me, boy. Introduce me!"

Judy looked up at the intruder. He was very well dressed. Curly light hair and dark eyes. An unusual combination. A pale yellow tie and a brown sport suit and a white shirt with long points on the collar.

"Judy—Miss Allison— This is Elton Day."

"Are you an announcer?" Judy asked Elton Day.

"I? Heavens, no! I can't stand listening to myself talk," Day said, with a pointed look at Dick Mason.

"But—" Judy began. She saw a flush on Dick's smooth face. So they weren't good friends!

"I write." Day said it very simply.

"Write? Books?"

"One only. So far, anyhow. And no good, either. But I'm working on another one. And writing radio stuff meanwhile. Tripe. Stuff about how to be beautiful, and—Oh! Wait a minute! What's this program you're going to work on?"

"Why—it's called the Beauty Builder."

Judy stopped. For Elton Day had thrown back his head and begun to laugh, a great, chortling laugh that made people at the other tables turn and stare, that made the waiter grin—that seemed to make Dick angrier every moment.

"That's marvelous!" Elton Day managed at last. "Nothing less than marvelous! Because—Guess what. Miss Allison?"

"What?"

"I write the Beauty Builder. I write the stuff you've got to read. A new program I just sold. And we'll have to spend a lot of time together. We certainly will. Thank you, Dick. Thanks a lot. Because you couldn't have got a nicer voice for just the sort of character I want to build up. And—See here, Miss Allison."

He became suddenly businesslike. But Judy stopped him.

"I'm afraid I can't talk about it much right now," she said. "I—" She ought to say, "Don't you see? I'm with Dick Mason. I'm his guest, not yours." But she couldn't say that. She needed the job desperately. She needed this chance. And she'd have to work with Elton Day, have to get along with him, have to take his suggestions.

Deplorable Penal Conditions Found in Hawaii by Owen

BY RUSSELL OWEN.

HONOLULU, March 20.—Nothing could better illustrate the lackadaisical attitude toward crime and criminals in Honolulu, which has led to increased crime, than the recent report of the prison board.

If it were not so serious it would be a joke. People were, in fact, chuckling over it, when a recurrence of attacks on women brought a renewed appreciation of the seriousness of lax law enforcement.

Prisoners leaving jail when they wished, spending evenings and weekends of freedom, prison work gangs lolling in parks and annoying residents by asking to use the telephone, keys of the gates and cell blocks entrusted to prisoners, liquor brought in for parties—these were only a few of the conditions disclosed by the prison board, whose investigation was conducted despite every hindrance from prison officials.

Joke Subjects.

The jails in Honolulu have long been a subject for jokes. The story is told of one warden who threatened to lock his prisoners out all night if they weren't back by 6 o'clock. But ludicrous as the situation may sound, it has, together with mild sentences for many crimes and frequent paroles and pardons, resulted in a complete disrespect for law.

Most of these laxities were during the administration of John C. Lane, the high sheriff removed and replaced by Major Gordon Ross. Under Major Ross discipline has tightened, but although the present guards do their duty there is a grave possibility that because of their insufficient numbers there will be a riot and wholesale jail delivery some day. Under Lane there was a gang in the prison which ran the place to suit itself, and the views of Mr. Lane were not those of a severe disciplinarian.

The report mentions one story of a prisoner left in a park by a work gang. He went to a house and asked to use the telephone. Said he: "Plees, missus, I like telephone for Papa Lane send wagon take me home. Me, I go 'sleep under bush, wagon come, take all home, only me. Plees, I like for wagon come take me home." His appeal was granted: the wagon came and took him home.

Prison Store.

There was a store in the prison, dating back to Sheriff Gleason. It has not been determined whether it was run as a private venture or as a prison store, but no record of costs, profits or disposition of profits has been found. It is believed to have made a profit of about $200 a month, but where the money went nobody seems to know.

The use of prison supplies for friends and relatives of prison officials was common. A committee of the prison board called on Governor Judd to acquaint him with rumors of the withdrawal of supplies, and the report says the governor stated he was aware of the practice as regarded subsistence for the families of the warden and deputy warden, but not as to the deputy high sheriff. They reported the governor had said he understood the practice was general in Honolulu and elsewhere, and "it was his opinion that at present nothing need be done about it."

The withdrawals, however, seem to have taken on the proportions which might have been expected of a Tammany official trying to feed a large family. In a little more than a month the high sheriff took from prison supplies 278 pounds of beef, 13 pounds of pork and 346 pounds of poi, the sticky native vegetable. The deputy warden withdrew 323 pounds of beef, 67 pounds of pork, and 289 pounds of poi. The deputy high sheriff withdrew 119 pounds of beef, 10 pounds of pork and 37 pounds of poi. The three officials used about 500 loaves of bread during this period, and other things in proportion. But there were also many withdrawals for which no requisitions were made: supplies were merely taken off the shelves and carried away.

Large List.

The deputy warden's laundry list for one month was one of the more amusing items in the report. The deputy apparently used 36 tablecloths, 53 sheets, 54 bath towels, 126 dish towels, 110 pillow cases, 174 napkins, 39 pairs of pajamas, 5 union suits and 6 undershirts, 2 nightgowns and an astonishingly various amount of other things. His family consists of his wife and six children.

The inquiry encountered the usual difficulties in getting prisoners to talk, and opposition by officials, and when some headway was made Lane started an inquiry of his own and found his assistants had been "putting things over on him." He discharged two. One was Turnkey David Bray, whom the committee accuses of being responsible for the escape of Kaikapu, the man who attacked a woman at Wilhelmina Rise, after leaving to get liquor for a New Year's celebration in the prison. After Kaikapu was caught he said the expectation of going out through the gate was given up because a friendly keeper who was to let him and Lyman, another prisoner, out, went on a vacation that day; but another man got the keys to the switchbox and turned the lights off.

Precedent Upset.

There was evidence that Lane knew of the prisoners going out for nights and week-ends, because the time of their going and returning was entered in a keeper's book Lane inspected. New Year's morning 10 or 12 prisoners went out at 6 o'clock to serenade prison officials. Then they returned to jail. Lyman and Kaikapu, the two prisoners whose failure to return to prison so terrorized Honolulu—precedent being all upset—were the ones usually sent out for liquor for the crowd. They were members of an inside gang, headed by Herbert Peters, and all were friendly with Bray.

The guards were asked what they would do if there were a concerted attempt to escape. One said he would "blow his whistle." Another said he would throw his gate key over the wall so the prisoners could not get it. Two said, as to a riot: "Well, that would be just too bad."

But it was a nice, friendly sort of prison up to the time of the escape of Lyman and Kaikapu, and nobody seemed to want to break out of it, particularly when they could leave any night they desired.

DISCOUNT RATE CUT BY BANK OF ITALY

ROME, March 20.—(UP)—The Bank of Italy reduced its discount rate 1 per cent to 6 per cent today.

RIO GRANDE DO SUL BREAKS WITH BRAZIL

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, March 20.—(AP)—The Montevideo correspondent of the newspaper La Nacion today had reports that the Brazilian state of Rio Grande Do Sul had broken off "political relations" with the de facto government of President Getulio Vargas.

The correspondent said his information was based on telegraphic advices from Porto Alegre, Brazil, which also said that the southern Brazilian state of Sao Paulo was contemplating a similar attitude.

Some unrest was reported at Santa Ana on receipt of the same information and troops were reported being held to quarters there.

The Montevideo report also had it that General Flores Da Cunha was found in the state of Rio Grande by newspapermen who quoted him as saying his state was ready to face any situation. He declined to give any more details "unless the situation clarified."

The Montevideo report contradicted dispatches from Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, today which said that President Vargas had summoned General Da Cunha from Porto Alegre to Rio de Janeiro as a mediator in his dispute with the southern state of Rio Grande Do Sul.

The Rio dispatch added that General Da Cunha had flown from Porto Alegre and would confer with the president tomorrow.

The Rio government announced meanwhile that the situation was absolutely quiet, after a cabinet meeting yesterday to discuss political developments.

Highlights of Wall Street

BY CHARLES W. STORM,
Editor, the News Service of Wall Street.

NEW YORK, March 20.—The failure of car loadings to show any increase, discouraging reports regarding Easter trade and the continued prostration of the steel industry are contributing to the less favorable view taken of the securities markets.

Indisposition on the part of prospective buyers of stocks makes it difficult to see where the purchasing power necessary to stabilize prices will come from, and already there is talk of possible new lows. The banking fraternity and insiders of big corporations are buying only moderately and on a scale-down.

BANKERS' ATTITUDE.

With the administration giving the bankers everything desirable in the way of credit relief it would seem natural to expect co-operation in order to bring about more stabilized conditions. Unfortunately, some private bankers are insisting that their share of railroad loans be paid off, and refuse to agree to any form of extension.

This attitude has been a blow to the stock market and until there is a change it is not likely that the public will appear on the scene to purchase securities when private bankers want nothing but cash.

In other words, while the general public has had to stand and take its losses, the private bankers as a price for their possible co-operation want the government to reimburse them.

RAILROAD EARNINGS.

Announcement the last week of increases in net operating revenues for February by the Chesapeake & Ohio, the Baltimore & Ohio and the Illinois Central, due to reduced operating expenses, revived hopes that a turn for the better in transportation earnings had come.

The report of the Kansas City Southern, however, for the same month, showed a decrease of $238,346, compared with a year ago, thus indicating that the initial reports of earnings should not be accepted as an indication that the February statements in general will show increases.

EARNINGS AND DIVIDENDS.

With the approaching end of the first quarter of this year, earnings statements are expected to be unfavorable and further dividend reductions and omissions are looked for.

Until the private bankers exhibit a conciliatory attitude toward the problem of financing the railroads and unmistakable signs of better business appear, the prospect of improvement in the market looks doubtful.

Earnings.

NEW YORK, March 20.—(AP)—The Phelps Dodge Corporation, first of the leading copper producers to report for 1931, shows a net loss of $983,903, before depletion, as against a profit of $515,173 for 1930.

After a charge of $4,068,898 for depletion of properties, and dividends of $2,131,420, the corporation showed a deficit to surplus of $7,188,798. This was substantially smaller than the deficit of $12,192,634 incurred in 1930, when dividends paid were substantially larger, totalling $5,911,342, and there was a larger charge for depletion, amounting to $6,796,465.

The balance sheet showed that this company, third largest American copper producer, had maintained a strong financial position. Current assets totalled $39,578,492, against current liabilities of $12,433,214. Cash on hand amounted to $7,206,629.

The annual report for 1931 of the United Aircraft & Transport Corporation shows net income of $2,187,548, equivalent to $1.04 per share on the common stock. This is comparable with $3,302,207, or $1.24 a share in 1930.

The company's operating revenue and sales for the year totalled $27,752,638, against $29,989,836 in the previous year. Total current assets at the end of 1931 totalled $25,005,006, of which $17,791,526 was in cash and marketable securities. Current liabilities aggregated $1,642,516.

The annual report pointed to extensive concentration of manufacturing and co-ordination of transport activities in 1931 which "are expected to provide substantial economies in operation for the period ahead."

NEW ORLEANS COTTON SUFFERS REVERSALS

NEW ORLEANS, La., March 20. (AP)—While there were some periods of active trading in the cotton market during the past week, the general volume of business was disappointing. The trend of prices was generally downward starting with a decline of 15 to 16 points on Monday, which was only partially recovered later in the week, only to be followed by a fresh decline of 18 to 19 points on Friday, and a further break Saturday resulting in a net decline for the week of fully $2 a bale.

Last Monday's decline was due mainly to the uneasiness created in the financial markets by the suicide of an important European personage, extensively connected with European financial affairs. There was some recovery from Monday's decline later in the week, owing to shorts covering, but the general trend of prices continued rather downward, despite another lowering of the Bank of England rate on Thursday.

Such recoveries as occurred in midweek were promptly lost on Friday when prices slumped off sharply on the uncovering of stop-loss orders and more or less weakness in stocks and wheat. The market was prevented from rallying by the unfavorable view of the domestic mill consumption during February as shown by the census bureau, and the rather bearish textile statistics which showed that sales of cotton goods during February barely equalled production as compared with a large excess over production shown in February last year.

Despite these unfavorable developments as to domestic consumption there was a disposition to take a more favorable view of the world's consumption of American cotton for the season, due to the large exports which now show on excess over last year of fully 1,150,000 bales. Exports for the week were heavy and stocks on shipboard at the leading gulf ports point to continued large clearances for foreign countries.

A sharp early break in prices on Saturday on a rumor that the farm loan board would liquidate its cotton holdings was practically all recovered when the rumor was later denied.

The following shows the high, low and closing sales in the New Orleans futures market during the past week compared with a year ago:

	High	Low	Close	Last Year
March	6.91	6.55	6.63	10.93
May	7.00	6.60	6.72	11.23
July	7.17	6.78	6.88	11.48
Oct.	7.36	6.99	7.09	11.74
Dec.	7.52	7.17	7.26	11.92

BOND PRICES RECEDE IN REACTIONARY TREND

BY VICTOR EUBANK.

NEW YORK, March 20.—(AP)—The bond market, so far as corporate securities were concerned, had a mild case of the shivers during the past week and the averages suffered accordingly.

The one bright spot on the otherwise overcast sky was the United States government list which paid little attention to the declining trend of general mortgages. Both Liberties and Treasuries held firmly around their high levels for the year. In addition to bank buying of the federals, which amounted to some $25,000,000, there was a quiet but steady demand on the part of smaller investors.

The railroads, as a whole, made the poorest showing of the week, a number of the lower priced carrier liens giving up most of their previous substantial gains. The attack on the rails began with the Missouri Pacific mortgages. Reports that bankers and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation were at odds on the payment of Missouri Pacific notes falling due April 1, caused these issues to sag almost daily. Liens of other roads joined in the sliding movement.

Prices in the transportation section tried to do a right-about-face Saturday, however, after President Hoover's statement on the railway loan situation had been published. It was indicated that April maturities would be paid and that the Missouri Pacific notes would be extended. A few of the hard-pressed carriers regained minor portions of their previous losses, but the majority could not hold recoveries.

STEEL BOOKINGS SHOW SUBSTANTIAL ADVANCE

CLEVELAND, March 20.—(AP)—Structural steel bookings amounted to 20,311 tons last week, the second highest this year, the magazine Steel announced today.

Despite this gain, however, the industry fell off a half point to 24 1-2 per cent of normal, and that in what is normally the highest production quarter of the year.

Although Ford has released orders for parts for the new Ford models, his tonnage specifications for finished steel still are withheld, the magazine said.

In the period of waiting, the steel industry is downcast, the survey said. Output of steel ingots for the first quarter was estimated at 4,500,000 tons, approximately 43 per cent below the corresponding period of 1931.

New higher price levels announced by the steel industry continue to be asking prices, as the magazine found a disposition to make concessions on occasional attractive requirements.

Minor adjustments put the iron and steel composite up 2 cents last week to $29.57, the finished steel composite up 10 cents to $47.02. The steel works scrap composite remained $7.93.

FATHER FORGIVES PRINCE WHO WED PRETTY COMMONER

NICE, France, March 20.—(UP)—A royal reconciliation occurred today when Prince Lennart, of Sweden, and his pretty bride arrived on their honeymoon and visited the prince's father and grandfather.

The couple, who married despite the formal objections of the Swedish royal family, had luncheon with Lennart's father, Prince William, at a quiet restaurant on the seafront.

Later they drove by automobile to visit King Gustaf at his hotel.

Their visit to the king coincided with promulgation by the Swedish cabinet at Stockholm of a decree depriving Lennard of his title and prerogatives.

The prince said he probably would take the German title of "Count of Mainu." The couple will go to the island of Mainu in Lake Constance to live on the prince's estate.

Industries Resist Pressure For Further Price Slashing

BY FRANK H. McCONNELL.

NEW YORK, March 20.—(AP)—Business was unable to score any noteworthy gains during the past week, but it did put up a scrappier front against the deep-rooted and despairing feeling that it should go on indefinitely working without profit.

The steel people continued to wait in vain for new automobile buying orders, but nevertheless refused to lower their prices still further. The copper industry showed great firmness in the matter of endlessly producing a metal for which there is a stagnant market; the oil industry got along a little further on its program of curtailing production to keep it within bounds; the textile industry showed that it, too, was becoming weary of working for unprofitable prices, and in the important dairy products business there was new evidence that both farmers and distributors were beginning to insist upon a moderately wider profit margin for their products.

In all of these industries, the leading executives were obliged to keep a discreet silence on the matter of prices, out of fear, they explained privately, of running afoul of the Sherman anti-trust law, but regardless of this fear they said there was distinct evidence that producers were beginning to give more study to the question of price. Many executives have contended that stabilization of commodity and manufactured prices around present levels, although many are at historic low levels, would turn the whole tide of general business. Buyers, they explained, always hesitate to place orders in a declining market, but once it shows stability they step forward more confidently.

Potential buying power, long deferred, was reported in practically all lines—from the heavy work of manufacturing and selling locomotives to the lighter work of making and marketing hair nets.

The steel industry recorded a further decline in production, depressing the rate for the industry to about 25 per cent of capacity. A faintly perceptible increase was reported in structural business, but there was no pick-up in automobile steel buying or other important lines.

The motor industry produced 800 units less than the week before, Cram's reports showed, but yesterday a new ray of hope was thrown on the picture when it was announced that the new Ford cars would make their formal public appearance on April 9. Not only Ford dealers, but those interested in all other makes of cars, have been waiting for Ford production to get under way. Public appearance of the new Ford cars, it was said, might stimulate sales generally.

Electric power production registered a gain that was better than expected. While production for the week ended March 15 was still 8.2 per cent below one year ago the comparison was better than for the preceding week when a difference of 8.7 per cent was shown. In the Chicago district, a distinct gain in power output was reported.

Silk consumption fell off sharply during the week, but this was more than offset by gains reported in cotton consumption. The textile industry of the south turned in a fairly cheerful report.

The shoe industry also continued to hold its steady pace of good business. Retail trade in general was a shade better during the week with fairly good demand reported for spring lines.

COTTON GOODS SALES QUIET DURING WEEK

NEW YORK, March 20.—Business was quiet last week. There were some large orders placed for 39-inch 68-72 print cloths the first of the week at the open market price but, apart from that, there was very little to talk about. Selling agents are hopeful, believing that more business will come into the market before long.

Prices have held well during the dullness and the market's steadiness has received favorable comment from buyers who would far rather see steady prices than an easing off at this time. Of course, there has been quite a volume of second-hand goods offering and a considerable quantity of these goods have already been disposed of. No doubt there were more print cloths bought in a semi-speculative way in January than sellers realized at the time. As the demand for finished goods did not come up to full expectation, a large quantity of these goods had to be absorbed by the market at one time or another. It is probably fortunate that a good part of them have already been disposed of.

It is a mighty good time to be keeping production in line with consumption. The cotton textile industry has maintained a much higher rate of production during the last two troublesome years than most other industries, too large for its own good because it has kept prices on a basis of cost or less.

We may, all of us, be satisfied that the worst of the depression is behind us; we may, most of us, look for some little improvement in the second quarter of the year and a fair sized pick-up in the fall, but we think all will agree that production must be watched very closely just the same for the balance of the year for, if it is not, we will surely slip back into the slough that we were in during November and December.

We cannot help but admire the ability that Great Britain has shown in handling her financial and trade situation. The improvement in that country should be of much importance to the world at large. Much constructive work is being done in Washington, but its effects have scarcely yet spread to the consumer. Retail trade has been suffering not only from reduced buying power but from unseasonable weather.

UTILITIES' WEAKNESS UNSETTLES CURB LIST

NEW YORK, March 20.—(AP)—The curb market has recently been unsettled by selling of utility stocks. Elsewhere, group movements have been less definite, although quotations of numerous stocks have been affected by adverse dividend actions and publication of 1931 earnings.

Unusually large offerings of Electric Bond & Share issues on Friday provided last week's outstanding feature. It was reported that sufficient proxies to assure ratification of the recapitalization plan had not been filed and that an extension of time might be made. The market also heard rumors concerning the refinancing of obligations maturing later this year, but group interests pointed out that holdings of cash and equivalent, already at hand, were substantially in excess of these demands. Pressure against the stocks relaxed and Bond & Share common, after selling at 5 1-2 on Friday, rallied above 7 on Saturday, ending the week at 6 7-8.

Humble and Gulf were among the oil companies to make public results of last year's operations. Both showed sharp declines, although the former was able to show a balance of net income. Shares of both dropped.

High-priced specialties displayed a soft tone. American Cigar, recently absorbed by American Tobacco, dropped several points. Great Atlantic & Pacific, Singer and Aluminum of America all gave ground.

Motor issues were about steady.

FOREIGN ENTRY BAN CHARGED TO HOOVER

NEW YORK, March 20.—(AP)—President Hoover was accused today by Representative Samuel Dickstein, chairman of the house immigration committee, of initiating infractions of the immigration laws to restrict the number of aliens entering the United States.

Asserting that the Jenkins bill, cutting immigration 90 per cent, discriminated against the eastern and western parts of Europe, he told the annual convention of the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society of America:

"Through his executive order of 1930 advising consuls abroad to be more strict in the granting of visas, the president almost directly told the consuls to keep everybody out, no matter what the merits of the case, no matter how much money they had."

'MERRY-GO-ROUND' IS BUSY STATION

During the past week we had the pleasure of being conducted all the way through the big Merry-Go-Round automobile service station, at the corner of Ponce de Leon avenue and Juniper street.

The busy manager, Paul Gibson, took time out to personally pilot us through and explain the many operations through which the average car is put through from the minute it is placed in his charge.

The first operation is to wash the car thoroughly on the outside shed wash rack, and this is done by men using a high-pressure specially prepared hot soapy solution that will not only wash all dirt, but all grease and other dirt that will not readily respond to ordinarily cold water.

This washing is done just as thorough by the man in the pit as the man that washes the hood and the car underneath is made as clean as it is possible to have it done.

The car is next run onto the large circle moving platform and here is where this big Sinclair service station receives its name Merry-Go-Round. This moving platform is very much like the platform of a merry-go-round, only it is several times larger. As many as a dozen cars can be carried around a circle of over 100 yards at the same time. The interesting part during this operation is to see the thoroughness with which the workmen work on each car.

Process Explained.

They first begin on the inside, by using a high-pressure air suction vacuum cleaner, and every part of the interior is quickly vacuum-cleaned and the inside of the car is cleaned better than the average car owner could expect it to be done by hand. The car is slowly on its way and runs through an automatic spray, wetting the car all over again, on the outside. Then two men use a high-pressure gun-nozzle hose and cover all the metal and top and they are then followed by two more men who just give special attention to the wheels, and these four men do all over again what the outside wash rack men had done less than 10 minutes before.

The car, while it has been carried along slowly all this time, has not yet covered one-third of the way, and now comes the dryers and polishers. The first man is one with a hot-air vacuum suction device, who draws all the water from all crevices and cracks wherever they may be, and two men then, with specially-made fine-texture towels, start quickly to work, and they in turn are followed by two men with fine chamois skins, who polish everything until the metal and glass look almost like looking glasses.

The car now having been thoroughly cleaned inside and out—and they have a capacity of 600 cars a day in the washing and vacuum cleaning department—is ready for the road or pleasure drive, but should the owner want it thoroughly greased they run it into the next one of their many buildings and here again a crew of experts that have several years' experience in their work use as many as 12 kinds and grades of oils and greases in the different working parts of a car.

These men, who are also practicable car mechanics, look at every bolt, nut, spring or any other part of the car as inspectors or trouble finders and a notation is made of just what it may be and of whether of a serious or trivial nature. The car owner is made aware of their findings and act as they may please in the matter.

If a car owner decides to have the reported trouble adjusted or repaired, the car is then run into the adjoining one of their buildings and the mechanics there, being well equipped with machines, tools, supplies and experience, quickly do whatever is to be done and the car is then mechanically alright as well as thoroughly cleaned and greased, and all then is needed is the gas, water and right grades of motor oils and the wide-open road calls for the long or short distances.

The large Sinclair gas and oil service station of this company is one of the largest in the south and is one of the most complete of its kind in the country, for in addition to its batteries of fine big pumps and oil containers they give a five-point service, checking air, water, oil, cleaning windshield and road information. The restaurant and waiting rooms are under the same roof make it very convenient for all those who wish to rest or get what they may wish to eat while their car is being served in any or all departments.

Mr. Gibson is especially proud of his workmen in all their different departments, most of them having been with him two years or more. He holds a school of training experience with them every month and in this way every one of his 34 men are kept up to the minute on any new or improved method that may be brought out anywhere in this country and at the same time in the interchange of ideas the Atlanta Sinclair Merry-Go-Round brings out some new innovations in servicing a car that is soon copied elsewhere.

Mr. Gibson extends the same kind invitation to all other motorists that he did to us and especially is this so to strangers and visitors to Atlanta.

FREEZE KILLS MANY BLOOMING PLANTS

Until the recent cold snap the country had the earliest spring in at least 20 years. It will now be set back to somewhere near normal.

The Ashford Park nurseries, out on Peachtree road, have kept records of the blooming time of trees and shrubs since 1912. This year some plants started to bloom seven weeks ahead of schedule. Others, like the dogwood and flowering peach trees, did not show any signs of being much ahead.

A few plants that started too early have been permanently injured. Most of them have only had the new tender growth, including the flower buds, killed. They will soon start to grow again, but cannot make new blossom buds for this year.

Although many shrubs have started to leaf out it is not too late to plant them. They can be lifted with a ball of earth if necessary. The Ashford Park nurseries will do this now without extra charge.

Do not delay any longer, however, and do not lose a season's growth by putting it off until fall. Drive out to the nurseries on Peachtree road or call Cherokee 1024 and ask for a representative to call at your home.

BANDITS WRECK TRAIN; THREE PERSONS KILLED

MEXICO CITY, March 20.—(AP)—Fifty bandits derailed an International train from Laredo, Texas, today at a point 12 miles north of Queretaro, causing two deaths in the wreck and another death among the bandits in a subsequent attack.

A fireman and an express messenger were killed when the engine and four cars of the train, which was bound for Mexico City, went into a ditch. The bandits attacked the train immediately afterward, but were driven off by a small guard after one bandit was slain.

BRUCE GIVES BONDS FOR TERMITE USE

The E. L. Bruce Company, of Memphis, announces its plan for providing individual surety bonds covering applications of its product, Terminix, used for the control of termite infestation in homes and buildings.

Each purchaser of a Terminix application performed by a licensed Terminix representative of the E. L. Bruce Company will be issued a bond by the National Surety Company of New York. The function of this bond is to guarantee performance of each five-year contract covering termite protection.

E. L. Bruce Company, manufacturer of Terminix, is also the world's largest producer of hardwood floorings and lumber. Terminix is a development of the Bruce research laboratories and is recognized as the superior termite insecticide. Its application is controlled through trained agents appointed by E. L. Bruce Company, whose guarantees are strongly backed by both the E. L. Bruce Company and the National Surety Company.

Terminix has been extensively employed for the control of termites during the past four years throughout the south and middle west. Several thousand homes and buildings are now protected against termite attack as the result of Terminix treatments.

The United States bureau of entomology estimates conservatively that the annual damage of termites to homes and buildings in this country is in excess of $40,000,000. Accurate investigations by E. L. Bruce Company reveal that in the average southern city and as far north as Indianapolis the percentage of homes and buildings actively infested by termites is considerably in excess of 50. When evidence of termite infestation is found in a standing structure expensive repairs will be ultimately necessary unless treatment is provided in time before too great damage is done.

As termites are active in their work day in and day out, working always within the wood, their damage is seldom detected, except by experts, until the situation becomes critical.

Inspections by all Terminix representatives of the E. L. Bruce Company are given free of charge. E. L. Bruce Company is represented in Atlanta by the Bruce Terminix Company, who will be glad to investigate homes and buildings in this territory without obligation, furnishing truthful reports of the exact conditions found.

TARZAN AND THE ANT MEN No. 49

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Uhha lay huddled upon a little pile of grasses in a rude thorn shelter in the open jungle. It was night, but she was not asleep. She watched a giant white man who squatted near a tiny fire. Only hate smoldered in her eyes as she regarded him. No longer did Uhha think of Miranda as The River Devil. This man's fear of the jungle beasts all about had at first puzzled her, then convinced the girl that her companion was an impostor, for River Devils, she knew, fear nothing.

Uhha was even commencing to doubt that the fellow was Tarzan, of whom she had heard such fabulous stories that she had come to look upon the ape-man as almost a devil himself. Her people had no gods, only devils. Miranda was strong and brutal. She knew he could and would harm her if she angered him. If she could only escape from his clutches! Many times had she planned it, but always she hesitated because of the terrible fear she had of being alone in the jungle.

Recently, Uhha had come to realize that at the first hint of danger this white man would bolt for the nearest tree. But before she left him she decided in her savage little brain to revenge herself for the way he had tricked her into aiding him to escape from the cannibals' village. Now as her glittering eyes watched the Spaniard she thought she saw a means to her revenge. The firelight showed her Miranda gloating over the contents of a small buckskin bag.

He had partially emptied its contents into the palm of one hand. Uhha knew how highly he prized these sparkling diamonds. Many times had he told her that he would sooner die than part with them. At last he replaced them in the bag and fastened it securely inside his loin cloth. Then he crawled inside the shelter, dragged a pile of thorns into the entrance to close it against the inroads of prowling beasts, and lay down upon the grass.

British King To Remain In London for Easter

LONDON, March 20.—(UP).—King George and his court are not going to leave London this Easter, for reasons of health and economy.

It is the custom for the court to move to Windsor for the first holiday of the year, but this year the king has decided to remain at Buckingham palace.

Well-informed quarters believe that the king's doctors advised him that the weather at Windsor castle, so near to the River Thames, would not be good for him at this time of the year.

On the other hand the king desires to hold four courts and a garden party this summer, as usual, and as he has voluntarily reduced his income by 50,000 pounds, he must economize somewhere to meet the expense of those functions.

Armed Cubans Berate Government Over Radio

HAVANA, Cuba, March 20.—(AP) Radio fans of Havana had hardly tuned in on station CMCF this afternoon to hear the harmony of the "Yo-Yo Trio," when there came the raucous cry:

"We are the communists of Havana. Down with Machado! Strike on March 24!"

There followed six or eight minutes of harsh, fast and excited address to the "people of Cuba and workmen in general." The president was berated and the police called assassins.

Just as suddenly as it began the address stopped.

When the police got to the station they were told that seven men had rounded up everybody in the building at the point of pistols, stopped the yo-yo songsters, and departed. All the station staff were arrested pending an investigation, and communications department officials said that station probably would be closed.

DR. ROBERT B. COUSINS PAID TRIBUTE IN TEXAS

The recent death of Dr. Robert Barton Cousins, native Georgian, president of the Texas College of Arts and Industries, revealed to Georgians the high esteem in which he was held in his adopted state where columns of news stories and a number of editorials paid sterling tribute to the noted educator.

Dr. Cousins died in a Kingsville, Texas, hospital on March 4 from an illness contracted when he came to Fayetteville, Ga., in February to attend the funeral of his mother. Influenza developed into pneumonia and he died after four days battle with the disease.

Dr. Cousins was born in Fayetteville, Ga., July 21, 1861, the son of Lieutenant and Mrs. I. W. Cousins. He attended the public schools of Georgia and received his A.B. degree from the University of Georgia in 1882. He then went to Texas, where his work carried him to superintendent of education in several school systems, including Houston, and as state superintendent of education. In 1923 he became the head of the Texas College of Arts and Industries at Kingsville.

Commenting on his 50 yearst of educational service to Texas, the Houston Post, the Kingsville Record, the South Texan and other publications praised him as one of the state's greatest educators.

Three sisters and four brothers of Dr. Cousins, all living in Georgia, survive him and are Mrs. F. A. Brown, of Atlanta; Mrs. B. F. Duke, Decatur, and Miss Kate Cousins, of Fayetteville; and Dr. J. S. Cousins, Jonesboro; Dr. R. C. Cousins, Decatur; W. C. Cousins, Atlanta, and C. P. Cousins, of Fayetteville.

DR. JOSEPH BROUGHTON IS BADLY HURT BY AUTO

Dr. Joseph Broughton, widely known Atlanta dentist, was severely injured at about 8 o'clock Sunday night when he and his daughter, Miss Mary Broughton, 22, were struck by an automobile on Washington street, between Hunter and Mitchell. Miss Broughton was only slightly hurt, doctors said.

A. L. Kelley, of 871 York avenue, S. W., driver of the machine, carried Dr. Broughton and his daughter to Grady hospital in his car. Grady attaches said Dr. Broughton was severely cut about the face and head and received a slight concussion of the brain. Miss Broughton was cut and bruised.

A private ambulance carried Dr. Broughton to the Georgia Baptist hospital after treatment at Grady and he was admitted for treatment and observation. Dr. Broughton, who resides at 38 Twelfth street, N. E., is 62 years old. Miss Broughton returned to her home.

Kelley said the doctor and his daughter were walking arm in arm across the street and that he was unable to stop his machine before hitting them both. They had just attended a church service in the neighborhood. Dr. Broughton is superintendent of the Sunday school of the Druid Hills Baptist church.

In the Eddies of the News Stream

By Ray McKay

Hard-Headed Love Affair.

A news dispatch from Calcutta, India, this past week gives an account of an Indian girl marrying a goat. It seems as if she did so to avoid the stigma of early widowhood, and that for a young widow to marry an animal or plant will cause the evil spirits to mistake said object for a husband and kill it. She will then be perfectly in good taste with the spirits to wed a real husband if she so desires.

Goofy idea, but still it's sane to them. Just imagine the things that could happen with a goat for a bridegroom. No one could afford to throw old shoes or rice at the couple for fear he would stop and appease his appetite. And as for tying old tin cans to the automobile—well they'd simply never make the train.

When the story was printed a lot of the fellows unloaded big laughs, and some of them married too. However none stopped to think that in most instances, when man takes woman in holy wedlock, that the groom is usually a goat anyway but just isn't conscious of it.

She Got Bit On the Trade.

A dentist whose veracity can not be doubted, tells this one about an agitated country woman who came into his office raising ned, saying that a set of false teeth he had made her did not fit. He investigated and denied the charge.

"Well, I know they don't," she asserted warmly, "and it means she can't go to church." The dentist was puzzled.

"You know my sister?" she asked. He admitted that he did.

"Well, we take time about going to church—every other Sunday," she explained. "We can wear the same shoes, the same hats, the same dresses and everything."

"What's that got to do with the teeth?" he inquired politely.

"Well they just ain't right, that's all—she can't wear them."

Just what sort of an agreement was reached it was not disclosed, but the insinuation is that the woman now has to attend church each Sunday herself, while the other remains at home.

POSTSCRIPT.

The cold snap made radio a favorite indoor sport . . . that is, until the political speeches started locally and Mexican stations were to be picked up on the distant waves . . . The recall is over, so far as Mayor Key is concerned, but it is rumored that the students at Tech High are circulating a petition to recall their student officers . . . The city recall got out a large vote and that is fine . . . But oh, just think of the new names on the tax digest . . . Luke Arnold, Key's secretary, says now that maybe the nickname, "Affidavit Luke," is not so worse after all . . . Wonder what rotogravure photographers in Atlanta would do for copy were it not for Woodberry Hall? . . . Don't you want to murder the fellow who goes through a revolving door just ahead of you, and then stops dead in the way on the outside?

White Leadership in G. O. P. Extends Throughout State

'Less Than Half a Dozen' Counties Have Failed To Name Majority of White Delegates.

Additional evidence that the republican party in Georgia turned to white leadership in Saturday's county conventions piled up Sunday as more counties reported.

Three months ago 125 of the 159 county organizations were controlled by negroes.

Sunday, James W. Arnold, national committeeman, said he had heard from two-thirds of the counties and "less than half a dozen" failed to name at least a majority of white delegates to district and state conventions. Most of them, he said, elected white officers as well.

"But I am not interested in which race controls the party machinery," he said, "so much as in the fact that white men and women in vastly increased numbers are taking an active part in republican affairs in the state. It is a sign of growing strength and an indication of the future when we may be able to give the democrats a real fight in Georgia.

"A large number of counties reported an actual majority of white persons in the conventions, and that was not because the negroes failed to attend. It was because more white people did. It looks mighty good."

Ben J. Davis, negro former national committeeman who aided in putting over the white leadership program in Fulton county Saturday, said there was a majority of 20 white persons among the more than 250 in the courtroom where the convention was held.

Arnold said he had heard of no other county convention that took the course of the one in Chatham (Savannah), where white control was denounced and the state committee's call for a district convention in Metter disregarded. The Chatham convention elected delegates to a district meeting to be held in Savannah, holding that the state committee was without authority to say where and how the district convention should be held.

The national committee, in its call for state and district conventions, was said by party leaders here to have provided for abolition of the old district organizations in states where the congressional set-up was changed by the recent reapportionment and redistricting. Accordingly, the state committee selected dates and places for the district meetings in Georgia, which lost two congressional districts, setting the first district convention for Metter. The call for a convention in Savannah was issued by the old organization, which the state leaders consider abolished.

Arnold said he understood movements similar to the one in Savannah had been started in a few other south Georgia points "but I hear they didn't get very far."
